Most Recent Picture of Pontiff

Pope John is shown as he recorded a radio message at the Vatican to the faithful of the Sanctuary of Piekary, near Katowice, Poland, last Saturday. The message is customarily sent on the last Sunday of May each year. It was the final public photo before he was confined to bed.

Pope Clings On By Thin Thread

'Going Sweetly Toward the End'

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope John XXIII slipped back and forth between coma and consciousness today, slowly but steadily sinking toward death.

"I have been able to follow the course of my death step by step," he told a prelate in a period of lucidity. "Now I am going sweetly toward the end."

Vatican radio told how close the Pope was to death. It said: "Short of a miracle, he could be expected to die at any moment."

His was a desperate struggle against the onslaught of a stomach tumor, hemorrhages and peritonitis.

He regained consciousness at least three times today.

But Vatican radio said he "remained on the threshold of this life and the next."

Prelates who came away from his bedside in the apostolic palace said he was serene despite the pain that wracked his body.

"We are suffering, but suffering with love," Vatican radio quoted him as saying. Repeatedly he invoked the name of Jesus.

The pontiff's periods of unconsciousness began Friday night.

Early Saturday morning he had a long period of consciousness during which he blessed his relatives—three brothers and a sister—and the grieving prelates in his sickroom.

He slipped in and out of unconsciousness.

Between 8 a.m. and 3:40 p.m. the Pope was unconscious. Oxygen was administered. His temperature rose. Injections of pain killer were administered. Doctors all but lost hope of keeping him alive another day, but they worked feverishly at his bedside.

The Pope recovered consciousness briefly at least twice in the afternoon and was reported lucid enough to bless those at his bedside once again and to tell them that he regarded his life as a sacrifice to his goals—Christian unity and world peace.

Few had expected the Pope would live into the new day. Minute by minute, then hour by hour, the bulletins from the Vatican radio and press office had prepared the waiting Catholic world for the news of his death.

Ferdinando Cardinal Cento, who recited prayers for the dying at the pontiff's bedside Friday, said he heard Pope John murmur then: "I wish to be taken away, so I can be with Christ."

The pontiff had amazed his doctors when he came out of his earlier coma at 3 a.m. and sat up in bed.

The Vatican said the Pope kissed a crucifix and blessed

Simple Prayers By Pontiff

VATICAN CITY (AP)—A dying Pope John prayed hour after hour while pain tormented his body.

His words made men of religion weep and put a catch in the throats of the worldly.

"The Holy Father's serenity and constancy with which his thoughts have been focused on God... have touched all hearts," was the way Vatican radio phrased it.

What were the prayers on the Pope's lips?

Over and over the Pope repeated a simple aspiration that he learned as a child, a formulation that Roman Catholic school children and illiterate natives in mission lands are encouraged to say in their minds:

"Jesus, Jesus."

He repeatedly turned his thoughts to his favorite evangelist, John, and whispered in Latin the words that Christ spoke before he raised Lazarus, the brother of Mary and Martha:

"I am the resurrection and the life." (John XI: 25)

The quotation continues: "He who believes in me, even if he die, shall live."

Once when his doctor was bending low over him, the Pope said:

"With death a new life starts—the glorification of Christ."

More than once, the Pope said a prayer that he put repeatedly into addresses and talks at audiences since his ecumenical council began:

"Ut unum sint"—that all may be one.

It was a prayer that Christ spoke to his apostles before he began agony in the garden, a prayer for the disciples to go into the world and spread belief in Christ "that all may be one, even as Thou, Father, in Me and I in Thee." (John XVII: 21)

Pope John said during one period of consciousness:

"I long to be taken away to be with Christ."

Much of the Pope's prayer was to ask blessings on the council, the church and all men working for peace. He expressed the intention many times from the first hours of his suffering earlier in the week.

Whenever he was not praying or unconscious, Pope John was turning his eyes toward those near him to ask, according to a Vatican communiqué, "forgiveness of all those whom he may have failed in the delicacy of his sentiment from the time of his youth until today."

Wind 'Sits It Out' In Swiftsure Start

By MONTE ROBERTS

The appointed time was 9:30 a.m. today, the place B.otchie Ledge on the Dallas Road waterfront.

The yachts were there—78 of them—the crews were there, more than 600 of them—the spectator boats, aircraft, and helicopters were there—dozens of them—and the waterfront watchers were there, in thousands.

But the appointment was missed by that most necessary component, the wind.

The result was the most dismal start for the Swiftsure ocean yacht racing classic ever witnessed in the 12 years I have been an observer.

Any sort of wind would have ensured a reasonable start, as there was a very slight incoming tide running—you could almost call it slack water.

But the wind sighed along listlessly, at less than 10 miles per hour from the southeast.

Then, just at the starting line, the breeze fluked around to the west, catching most of the big boats away out of position to the east of the starting line.

At 10:30, several of them—including HMCS Oriole, Ta-toosh, Dorade—had to drop anchor to stay their backward progress in the Clover Point area.

Navy Changes Mind

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

Victoria writer Howard O'Hagan leaves next week on a Greek freighter for London and the Continent, where he'll meet his wife, painter Margaret Peterson. She's over there on a Canada Council grant. Howard, who has a book of short stories coming out in the fall, says that his wife's paintings have become such a hot gallery item that people are calling him "Howard O'Peterson."

Eddie Gudewill launches a new, 35-foot cruiser today which he claims took four years to build. That's a lot of Coke bottle tops.

Archie McKinnon gets the national-magazine treatment in next Saturday's issue of Weekend. This means that the local YM-YW building campaign gets a publicity boost in a coast-to-coast circulation guaranteed at 2.2 million copies.

According to The Vancouver Province, mainland bookies rate Lyle Crawford an 8-5 underdog in his match there Sunday with Billy Wakeham. Local dopesters insist it's an even-money bet between two remarkably confident swingers.

Viscount Amory told friends here Friday about the Irish judge who pledged himself to "steer a middle course between the seas of partiality and impartiality." The British diplomat, incidentally, was a guest of Hubie Wallace this morning to catch the start of the Swiftsure. Lord Amory owns a yacht and is an ardent sailor.

Which reminds me: Good luck to harbormaster Capt. Ron Newell, who embarks on the matrimonial seas today with a most charming and attractive bride, the former Mary McKellar.

The new forestry laboratory being built at the corner of Burnside and the Island Highway has been acclaimed by all, and federal forestry officials are anxiously awaiting its completion.

People living in the area are even more anxious for its completion.

Each morning for the past two weeks, the neighborhood has been awakened by the not too musical sound of bulldozers.

At 6:30 a.m., yet.

What's happened to the Victoria Rowing Club?

There's a regatta at Shawnigan Lake today with crews from the mainland and the State of Washington, but not one entry from Victoria—once the home of some famous rowing crews.

Reports from Indianapolis and the 500 say Victoria driver Ed Kostenuk's entry in the classic was a "rear-engine Aston Martin Cooper."

That should come as a surprise to A. J. Watson.

The car was a Watson-Offenhauer when he built it.

Movie blurb from Hollywood: "Here is a great experience choking heat, knitting cold, mud, leeches, mosquitoes, malaria, and dysentery."

What next?

Patrons of a downtown eatery were somewhat startled the other day when a customer eating at the counter popped a hot potato into his mouth, turned a bright red, and spat it out with a curse.

He looked around at the staring faces, stood up and announced:

"A fool would have swallowed that."

With that he sat down, and finished his meal.

It isn't original, though. We have memories that Dr. Samuel Johnson quoth likewise in a similar situation some centuries ago.

You can find your way around Victoria's side streets but you may get lost on her main thoroughfares, according to Mrs. Ailreda Skene of Nanaimo.

In a letter to Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. Skene wrote:

"The side roads and streets are well marked, but not the main streets. One can drive a long way on Gorge Road or Douglas or Cadboro Bay Road without being sure it is the right street, especially if one turns into it at other than a main corner."

The same is true in Saanich. All the side roads are posted, but there are long stretches where one isn't sure whether it is West Saanich, East Saanich, or neither.

Tolmie House Victim Of Wrecker's Hammer

Cloverdale House, former home of the late Premier Simon Fraser Tolmie on Lovat Avenue, started to fall Friday.

Clouds of dust arose as provincial public works employees removed bricks from the old kitchen fireplace, while at the far end of the house the last tenant to vacate carried out her belongings.

"I loved it a lot and I hate to see it go," said Miss Beverly Sauer.

But Mrs. Doris Kurtz, wife of the caretaker, did not share the enthusiasm of those who want to see parts of Cloverdale House preserved.

ROTTING WOOD "I didn't like the part they are making all the fuss about," she said. "It was too inconvenient for modern living."

One of the workers chipped away a chunk of rotting wood from one of the walls.

"This is what they got all excited about," he said. "You would think it was 1,000 years old."

The public works crew took apart the old chimney and fireplace and cleaned the bricks for storage in an unnamed place, away from souvenir hunters.

Pictures were taken of the structure before it was torn apart.

Victoria house wrecker H. D. Taylor will dismantle the rest of Cloverdale House during the next few days to make room for an apartment building which is to be erected on the site.

ALL-IMPORTANT TALK MONDAY

B.C.'s Columbia Team Hopeful of Success

By FRANK BUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

The B.C. team headed by Premier Bennett leaves Sunday for Ottawa and what may be a turning point in the checked history of the Columbia River power development.

Despite reports of pessimism from the east, the air of leaving in Victoria is full of hope.

It is felt that the wariness expressed in federal circles stems mainly from the fact that this is the first formal meeting of the new Liberal government and the Soviets from over the mountains.

It is, perhaps, fear of the unknown rather than disagreement.

Some observers here feel that the Liberal policy on the Columbia will turn out to be much closer to Premier Bennett's than political skeptics realize.

A major reason for this is the high regard Prime Minister Pearson holds for Jack Davis, the MP for Coast Capilano who has become his special adviser, and who is certain to be present at the federal-provincial meeting which begins at 10:30 a.m. Monday on Parliament Hill.

Mr. Davis in an important speech last year made a case for the Columbia very similar to Premier Bennett's, the key to which is sale of all Canada's share of downstream benefits from the project to the U.S.

As far as Mr. Bennett is concerned any hard-headed economist must see that this is the only road to real cheap power on the Columbia because the money would pay the entire cost of building the three B.C. dams required by the treaty and for installation of generators for 2,000,000 horsepower at Mica Creek, the biggest of them, as well.

This, according to B.C. officials, would amount to about $500,000,000. The cost of the dams alone would be slightly under $400,000,000.

Might Give at Last Moment

While the premier has in the past declared that B.C. will settle for nothing less, there are intimations that when it comes down to the final bargaining with the Americans on this, he might be prepared to give—possibly as much as $100,000,000.

Mr. Bennett feels that he explained his views adequately to Mr. Pearson at a meeting in Ottawa last fall, when the prime minister was leader of the Opposition. He goes so far as to claim that Mr. Pearson did not seem much opposed to them, either.

Mr. Pearson has since hinted that the Liberals seek important changes in the Columbia treaty with the U.S., signed in January, 1961, but still to be up-ratified by Canada's Parliament.

But on one important point he and Mr. Bennett seem to agree—that the changes can be handled by an exchange of notes between Ottawa and Washington rather than negotiation of the treaty.

Could it be that they are both talking about the same thing—agreement for purchase by the U.S. of the downstream benefits?

There has also been talk in Ottawa of an increase in the flood control compensation set by the treaty—a lump sum of $64,400,000.

Nothing would please B.C. more, though doubts are expressed that the Americans can be convinced they should pay.

Premier Leads Group of 8

The B.C. team consists of Mr. Bennett, his executive assistant W. C. Budd, Water Resources Minister Ray Williston, Attorney-General Robert Bonner, B.C. Hydro co-chairman Dr. H. L. Keenleyside and Dr. Gordon Shrum, and two technical experts, one from Mr. Williston's department and one from Hydro.

"I can't see any insurmountable difficulties," says Mr. Williston.

Several members of the team believe a policy agreement can be reached in the first meeting. If this is the case, the technical men will probably remain in Ottawa for further talks with their federal counterparts.

The next move would be for the federal government to submit a note to Washington outlining proposals for any adjustment or attachment to the treaty.

This would be followed by a considerable number of meetings on the technical level of Ottawa, B.C. and U.S. officials to sew up an agreement, and perhaps simultaneously, referral of the treaty to Parliament for ratification.

SNARLING BEAR FELLED BY WOMAN

PENTICTON (CP)—A 60-year-old woman killed a 200-pound bear with one shot when it started to chase her around the outside of her cabin at remote Rock Creek.

Mrs. Lena Murphy killed the animal with a shot from a .44-calibre rifle.

"It snarled, pawed the ground and then started after her," said her son, Roy Gratto, 49, who also lives at the cabin. "The bear dropped within 20 feet after she shot it."

$35 Million Lawsuit

NEW YORK (AP)—Relatives of many of the 130 persons killed in a plane crash near Paris last June are suing the Boeing Company for $35,636,041. The suit was filed Friday in federal court by the law firm of Kreindler and Kreindler, who represents 29 sets of plaintiffs. The complaint accused Boeing, which sold the 707-jet to Air France, of careless design and manufacture in the assembly of the plane. It also claimed that the plane was not safe.

Court Backs Negroes In Theatre Picketing

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Tallahassee Negroes have won court protection for regulated picketing of the city's white movie theatres in what their lawyer called a sweeping court victory over segregation.

As a result, the delighted Negroes called off a scheduled 12th mass demonstration before the city's two white theatres. Instead, they met Friday on the campus of Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University, a Negro school, where they mapped plans for a lawsuit opening the theatres to all. Earlier demonstrations resulted in the arrests of more than 200 Negroes.

Other plans included continuing picketing of the two theatres under the court ruling from 1:15 p.m. until the beginning of the last feature today and Sunday. During the picketing, Negro students planned to try to buy tickets, but Negro leaders said they would leave peacefully if refused.

In addition, they prepared to file damage suits against the Florida and State theatres for what they called indignities growing out of their arrest as a result of restraining order obtained by theatre manager Les Pendleton.

MODIFIED ORDER
Circuit Court Judge Ben C. Willis modified a Thursday restraining order that forbade the Negroes to picket, demonstrate, block the doors and sidewalks, or otherwise interfere with the white theatres.

In his modified order Friday, he forbade Negroes to enter the movies without permission from the management and limited pickets to 18 at the Florida, where the sidewalk is wide, and to 10 at the State, where the sidewalk is narrow.

Tobias Simon, one of the lawyers representing the Negroes, predicted "the day of segregated theatres in Tallahassee will come to an end very shortly."

A total of 225 Negroes and one white Florida State University student were arrested after People announced a drive against job discrimination in San Francisco. The chapter president said San Francisco's Negro unemployment rate of 13 per cent, twice that of white persons, makes it "if not the worst, then among the worst cities outside the south" for Negro job-hunters.

officer. The RCMP sergeant suggested to the wife—after ascertaining she was home alone—that she spy on her neighbors and her husband spy on fellow loggers, Mr. Cameron said.

The woman was "literally terrified." They were simple folk with a central-European name and she feared to refuse the officer's request in case she was judged to be Communist. They were "inferences," he added, that the husband might lose his job if he failed to cooperate.

The sergeant had picked them, Mr. Cameron said he was told, because they were NDP supporters and "obviously very close to the Communist party, and therefore they could quite easily slide into the Communist party and be welcomed with open arms."

Added the West Coast MP: "No one but a complete political ignoramus would have that view and to send people out on this supposedly very critical, dangerous enterprise of riding herd on subversives in Canada—people who are complete ignoramus—is to my mind disgraceful."

IDENTITY MISTAKEN
He also told of a young man from his constituency suddenly discharged from the navy with no explanation—only because of a case of mistaken identity.

The youth's file, which Mr. Cameron said he finally had been permitted to see, erroneously linked the youth with a man of the same name who had run against Mr. Cameron as a Communist candidate in 1953.

Mr. Cameron said he knew personally they were not related.

"This was the basis on which the highly intelligent intelligence service of this country sent this boy back from the navy under a 'cloud that is still hanging over him.'"

Mr. Orlikow said the RCMP should limit its investigations to cases where there is evidence of a subversive act.

In other matters, former Conservative finance minister Nowlan said Canada probably will need to borrow a lot of money this year in the American market and suggested the Liberals handle finances with care so that the budget can be balanced speedily, holding the dollar firm.

SIU Chief Loses Contempt Appeal

MONTREAL (CP)—Hal C. Banks, president of the Seafarers International Union of Canada (Ind.), lost his appeal Friday against a contempt citation in connection with the picketing of an Upper Lakes Shipping Limited vessel at Trois-Rivières, Que.

It is one of two contempt actions involving Banks still before the courts.

The Quebec Appeal Court, by a 2 to 1 majority, Thursday upheld Justice Andre Sabourin of the Quebec Superior Court who had ruled Mr. Banks must show cause why he should not be held in contempt for ignoring an injunction against picketing the Toronto-owned vessel at Trois-Rivières in May, 1962.

U.S. Has No Plans To Increase Bases

WASHINGTON (CP)—The United States is seeking authority to send an increasing number of U.S. interceptor squadrons into Canada on a rotation basis but not on the basis of a permanent installation, a high-placed military authority said Friday.

He made this disclosure as the Pentagon stated Defence Secretary McNamara has no intention of increasing the number of U.S. squadrons based in Canada.

Arthur Sylvester, assistant defence secretary, said he discussed various speculations on the issue with McNamara and was told there would be no additional squadrons based on Canadian territory, other than those already based in Labrador and Newfoundland.

IN CONFLICT
This appeared to be somewhat in conflict with the Wednesday statement by Canadian Defence Minister Paul Hellyer, day, who said there have been informal intimations of a U.S. proposal which he expected to receive later.

However, the military informant said there is no conflict. McNamara was right in saying there would be no request for basing more planes in Canada. The request would be for authority to send as many as eight U.S. squadrons into Canada on a rotation basis.

These squadrons would remain in Canada for short periods and then fly back to the U.S. to be replaced by other squadrons using RCAF facilities. There would be no new stations built.

WRIT FILED AGAINST AMBUSHED SIU OFFICIAL

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lawyer Alex Macdonald filed a writ Friday claiming unstated damages from Rod Heinekey, Pacific coast vice-president of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.), for libel and slander.

Mr. Macdonald said he was acting on instructions from William J. Smith, Ottawa, national president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC).

The writ is on behalf of Local 400, CBRTGW and three of its officers: James Thompson, president; Neil North, vice-president, and Michael James, acting secretary.

Mr. Heinekey was wounded at midnight Wednesday when an unknown assailant fired a shotgun at his back.

Rival Claims SIU Members Revolted Against Leaders

OTTAWA (CP)—A long-time foe of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.) says there has been a rebellion against SIU leaders on the west coast.

William J. Smith, president of the 32,000-member Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC), says the uprising took place May 21 at a Vancouver meeting of SIU members.

"For the first time in SIU history, resolutions were passed condemning the luxurious living of SIU leaders," said Mr. Smith in a prepared statement.

He did not disclose the source of his information on the SIU meeting, but he hinted that it may be behind the attempt on the life of the SIU's west coast vice-president, Rod Heinekey.

The statement, issued from the Ottawa headquarters of the Canadian transport union although Mr. Smith was in Montreal, said there is a "pattern of violence within the SIU."

It noted that dozens of witnesses appeared before Mr. Justice T. G. Norris' one-man investigation of marine labor strife to tell about beatings, sluggings, attacks, intimidation and shootings in the marine industry.

"Mr. Heinekey should point the accusing finger elsewhere," declared Mr. Smith.

ASSAILED OFFICERS

He said that at the May 21 SIU meeting, rank-and-file members of the Seafarers' union made speeches "bitterly assailing SIU officers, especially SIU president Hal C. Banks and Mr. Heinekey."

Mr. Smith said this was the "first time in SIU history" that SIU members had spoken out against their leaders.

At the same meeting, he said, the membership refused to endorse a $50 special assessment which the SIU headquarters in Montreal had decreed to be collected from all SIU members "for the purpose of fighting the Canadian Labor Congress."

Such an assessment, said to be levied on SIU members in three installments over the next three months—would add $750,000 to SIU coffers on the basis of a claimed membership of 15,000. Regular dues payments in the SIU are $4 a month. Initiation fee is $240 for a probationary member with a further $100 charged for full membership.

Canada's Defence

PARLIAMENT'S NEW DEFENCE committee faces problems much more difficult than the wrenching but simple decision on nuclear weapons. For the first time since the last World War the basic organization of the military services is to be re-examined.

Some of the questions thus raised have been discussed by our Ottawa correspondents on this page recently but the overriding question is what actual defence functions the nation should attempt to perform.

What exactly are we getting for our annual expenditure of about $1.6 billions on defence? Are we getting what Canada, and its allies, most need? Or could the money be spent to better advantage otherwise? In short, what should our role be in the grand alliance?

It cannot be said that this role is settled and permanent, for as Mr. Pearson has emphasized repeatedly, the science of war and hence the needs of a defence system designed to prevent it are constantly changing. He was widely criticized for saying that after accepting nuclear weapons, to fulfill a solemn commitment, his government would feel free to revise its entire defence policy as conditions and the needs of the alliance changed in the future. But he was quite right in his refusal to freeze the present pattern.

The defence committee of Parliament will have full opportunity to consider that pattern and any better alternative. First, however, it must understand much better than the public understands now exactly what responsibilities Canada has assumed in NATO, NORAD and the United Nations. If the chiefs of the defence services know what their forces are expected to do in an emergency Parliament assuredly does not.

The actual strength of the services and the responsibility for high decisions also needs examination. Since the last war this area has been almost entirely neglected by Parliament. Few of its members know how defence decisions are made or who is responsible for them.

This state of confusion in government and legislature does not reflect, of course, on the abilities or devotion of the service chiefs who, more than anyone else, would welcome a new clarity and a sharper definition of their functions.

As an article on this page today suggests, a greater civilian participation in defence is required—not interference in purely technical questions, which must be left to experts, but in the shaping of overall policy which has seldom been given any attention by Parliament and not often by government.

The defence committee will be chiefly valuable in providing an opportunity to reassess these problems from the beginning, above all, to consider what the nation should do about defence, what it can afford to do, what means it has at its disposal and how they can be best deployed not in isolation but in full partnership with our allies.

Such an inquiry cannot be hurried (nor can it relieve the government of final responsibility) but it can prove to be one of the most important tasks before the new Parliament.

Speedy Justice

AS A RESULT OF COLUMN comment by Douglas Hillside and follow-up news stories in The Times, the attorney-general's department has acted promptly to suspend the iniquitous 100-yard radar trap with which Ladner police shared many unsuspecting Victoria motorists last weekend.

The public is entitled to fair play from police in interpretation of traffic regulations. It did not get it on the Tsawwassen thruway. Those responsible for the high-handed police action should be disciplined.

Mr. Bonner's office has moved with commendable vigor to right this wrong. Now all that remains is to refund fines to those drivers who were summonsed in spite of the fact that they were proceeding well within the posted limit.

The Empress Arbitration

THE BENNETT GOVERNMENT, and especially Labor Minister Leslie Peterson deserve the thanks of this community for their prompt action in averting a strike at the Empress Hotel.

Up until Mr. Peterson and his aides stepped into the dispute, a strike seemed inevitable. The hotel, believing the local action to be part of a wider disruption of CPR establishments, seemed resolved to stand fast. The union, for its part, was fully prepared to walk out.

There seems little doubt that the hotel could have remained open, but at the price of endless bickering and dislocations. As was evidenced in the Royal York dispute a year ago, nothing can divide a community more quickly than a strike at the city's leading hotel.

This is particularly true at the Empress, around which so much community business revolves. With four months of conventions booked, and a huge tourist rush anticipated, a strike at this time would have been hopelessly confusing.

By painstaking negotiations, and by taking a firm stand with both parties to the dispute, Mr. Peterson persuaded them to bend a little. Agreement was reached on the appointment of an arbitrator, whose findings will be binding, and whose decision will result in a contract of three years' duration.

The labor minister has chosen wisely in naming Dean George Curtis of UBC's faculty of law. He is a man held in high regard by all sectors of public life in this province, noted for his integrity and impartiality. He may be expected to arrive at a fair and workable resolution of the problem.

It's 'Recognition' Now

IN GREATER VICTORIA HIGH schools what were previously called "Graduation Exercises" are being called "Recognition Exercises" this term.

The change in name is the logical and obvious result of complaints that "graduation exercises" should not be held for students who do not graduate. And since many cannot now know whether or not they will pass final examinations still to be conducted and marked, the new name seems more satisfactory.

Only those students who have completed four years' high school work and are potential graduates will be honored in the "Recognition Exercises." Those who have not earned sufficient credits, if they attend at all, will be members of the audience.

In effect the change makes the name of the ceremony more semantically exact. The students who have done their work, earned recommendations or stand a chance of passing their final tests will be honored.

This is an occasion on which they receive congratulations and recognition for having applied themselves adequately to their lessons and shown the requisite ability either to guarantee their receipt of a certificate of success, or at least to be in a position to earn one if they write finals.

The ceremony is justified on the grounds that it provides the opportunity to praise good students for their efforts in the presence of friends, parents and teachers, and to mark, in a formal manner, the completion of an important phase—for some the final phase—of their classroom education. As an end to one period in a student's life, the authorities believe it should be made a memorable occasion.

A Sort of Golden Silence

MR. LEONARD "RED" KELLY, who is simultaneously a member of the Stanley Cup winning Toronto Maple Leafs and a Member of Parliament, has made his maiden speech.

In it he has called for higher physical fitness for Canadians and has jokingly replied to newspapermen who criticized him for saying nothing during earlier sittings.

Mr. Kelly's previous silence might, however, provide an object lesson for some other parliamentarians—an object lesson in how to avoid speaking when the individual has nothing to say.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

IN A HIKE along Lochside Drive going in from Cedar Hill Cross Road there are many interesting things to see.

Many tall Cottonwood trees are flanked by Osier Dogwood and Cascara.

Here the wild roses are in abundance and the perfume is delightful. You can see the fruit of the Indian plum turning yellow and the leaves starting to turn color.

The Hooker willows are showing their "cotton" clumps and their woolly leaves stand out against the green of the Twin-flower Honeysuckle.

The broom along the right of way is sticky with honey which attracts many bees and other insects.

A glimpse of Lost Lake can be seen if you scramble through the bush at the end of the old road.

Around the margin of the lake you can see many western birch trees growing; there are a few old lodgepole pines still standing.

Running across the lake there is still evidence of the old railway that ran to Sidney years ago; the old piles stand out in the water seemingly forlorn and forgotten.

Where the wood has been slashed there is an abundance of new pine seedlings and birch taking hold in the peat bog soil.

Here there are "mats" of the lily-of-the-valley with its waxy leaves and small spike of white flowers.

Scattered throughout the area you can find the Labrador tea with its woolly rolled leaves and star-like flowers that give off a pungent odor.

Continuing his European study tour, Victoria artist Herbert Siebner writes: "In the fishmarket of Istanbul, on the shore of the picturesque Bosphorus, I was fascinated by an old pelican seated on a barrel. People had gathered around, and it looked as though the bird was telling some fairy tale from the Thousand and One Nights."

FROM WASHINGTON

Resist the Temptation to Treat It as a Shouting Match

By WALTER LIPPMANN

NOW that it is virtually certain that President Kennedy will not be able to see President de Gaulle in Europe, his trip presents problems which did not exist when it was first planned. Originally, it was to have been a good will visit to Italy. This led to the feeling that the President could not go to Rome unless he went also to Bonn. He had been in Paris year before last. He had never been in Germany.

Lippmann

But except for a sentimental visit to Ireland, he was to confine himself to Italy and Germany. The President was to bypass London in order not to offend General de Gaulle. Then, unless President de Gaulle chose to be gracious about inviting the President to lunch in Paris, that was to be all.

When instead President de Gaulle chose to feel that there was no point in making Franco-American relations look better than they are, the prospect began to brighten that the President might after all see Mr. Macmillan.

Without its having been planned that way, the trip, which was to show good will to the Fanfani government in Italy, has transformed itself into a big affair in politics. For nobody of any sophistication will believe that the President's rather elaborate tour in German cities is no more than what it professes to be—a gesture of solidarity within the Atlantic Community.

It may well be accidental and unplanned, but the visit to West Germany turned into a big affair shortly after General de Gaulle's January press conference. Unless the President does something to prevent it, he will find himself in the position of trying to woo the Germans away from the French and of trying to demonstrate that he can draw larger crowds of Germans than did General de Gaulle.

Such a contest for German favor, or the appearance of such a contest, would be not only unseemly but most unwise. For it will be taken in Europe to mean that the United States regards West Germany as its principal ally and as the leader of Europe. This interpretation, which is in fact already widely held, has been much confirmed in European eyes by our misguided pressure on the Germans to take a leading part in nuclear affairs.

Though it has only minor influence on the administration, there is a school of opinion in this country which does in fact believe exactly what the Europeans think we believe. This school is hopeless about France, it distrusts Great Britain, it puts no high value on Italy and it is impatient with the smaller countries. It insists that the core of a sound American policy is a special German-American relationship.

That is very heady wine to offer the Germans. Fortunately, so I believe, the preponderant mass of German opinion has learned enough from the experience of this century to know that the wine is poisoned.

It would alienate Germany from its European neighbors. It would make Germany and Eastern Europe irreconcilable. And it would revive that very nationalism, jingoism and militarism which caused the two dreadful wars.

The Americans who want to make West Germany our principal ally in Europe are not inspired by friendship for the German nation. They are tough guys looking for tough auxiliaries.

There is then a dangerous pitfall on the road that the President intends to travel. There is no need to fall into it if we well beforehand we know where the pitfall is. I assume that the President himself is well aware of it and that he will find ways to deflate the appearance of playing high politics with our European allies.

The more serious risk lies in the way we, as newspaper men, report the trip, whether we are able to resist the temptation to treat it as a shouting match and a beauty contest between the French president and the American.

A New Staff Structure for the Three Armed Services

ONE OF the most important tasks facing the defence committee which the Pearson government proposes to establish early in the current session of Parliament will be to re-examine, separately and together, the staff structure of the three armed forces.

As earlier articles in this series have indicated, present administrative arrangements in services are not only archaic but inefficient; they place far too much responsibility on the shoulders of the chiefs of staff and far too little on civilians.

Our present defence difficulties are not the result of ineptitude or militaristic bungling in the services themselves. The Canadian armed forces by and large have been led by dedicated men whose highest objective is that the services which they head be as efficient as they can make them. It would be wrong and totally unfair to blame these people for the dilemma in which the nation now finds itself.

At the root of the problem is the fact that there has been no really strong civilian leadership given to the armed forces since the end of the Second World War. Civil authority, though it has been exercised from time to time at the top (the late Brooke Claxton's reorganization of the defence department in 1949-50 and Mr. Diefenbaker's veto of the Avro Arrow are examples) more often than not has come too late in the decision-making process to be effective. A good deal of the authority which was once exercised by civilians—most notably during the war when each service had its own cabinet minister—has gone by default to the chairman of the tri-service chiefs of staff committee and to the individual chiefs of staff.

In the absence of civil leadership these officers have been forced to make policy decisions which in a democracy should really be made at the political level.

Under the present system, for example, it is not uncommon for the services to be working for months or even years on new weapons, spending large sums of money on investigation, research, design and so forth, before seeking civil approval.

By the time such a project reaches him for final approval, the minister of national defence faces the dilemma described by Arthur Balfour a half-century ago, when the British army was headed by a single commander-in-chief: Having had no part, either personally or through his representatives, in the decision-making process up to that point, the minister must either accept his experts' recommendations (in which case, his superior authority is mere form) or he may enter into a debate on the pros and cons of the project and start afresh (in which case he has in effect rejected his experts' advice). Either way he has placed himself in a false position. The experts prevail over him or he, a layman, overrules them, with consequent loss in time, effort, money—and morale.

The parliamentary defence committee will hear many suggestions for improving these arrangements. Some have already been put forward in the report of the Glasco royal commission; others are contained in the annual reports of the auditor-general.

But one reform surely is obvious: civil authority must be reasserted, not simply for its own sake but in fairness to the services themselves.

Three relatively simple administrative changes would accomplish this objective. First, the defence committee of the cabinet should be reactivated and made more effective. Ministers who are appointed to the committee must be men who will do their homework and taken an active interest in the complex policy decisions which come to them.

Under the present arrangement, these decisions too often have been made by the chiefs of staff committee and approval by the cabinet is little more than a political formality.

Second, the chiefs of staff committee must be replaced or reorganized with greater civilian participation. This can be accomplished by reconstituting it as a defence council composed of the minister, the associate minister, the deputy minister, the chairman and the individual service chiefs, each an equal member participating in and responsible for all its decisions.

The present committee, with its chairman continuing as a tri-service commander who is the first among equals, could carry on if necessary as an informal senior co-ordinating or liaison group.

The third reform would be to extend civil participation in the same way to the individual services themselves by reconstituting the army council, the naval board and the air council along lines suggested in earlier articles in this series.

Ottawa Moves Against Blight

The Ottawa Citizen

AMID a welter of controversy over a public housing program, City Council has unanimously decided to proceed with a long-heralded urban renewal scheme. The urgent need now is to translate intention into actual redevelopment projects at the earliest possible date.

Council has approved urban renewal action in three centre town areas that have a major concentration of blight. While the total estimated cost is $3,600,000 the city's outlay will only be about $270,000 because of grants made by the senior governments toward projects of this kind. City Council's first positive move on urban renewal comes at a time when the National Capital Commission is starting redevelopment activity in two sections of Ottawa and the Public School Board is making plans for such action in another area. A co-ordinated approach should be used toward the whole question of urban renewal in Ottawa in the interests of orderly planning. The need to provide adequate park space in the city should not be overlooked.

When the first blueprint for urban renewal in this city was unveiled late in 1960 a total of 16 areas were designated as substandard. Delay in making a constructive start on the program has resulted in a series of expropriation and redevelopment moves on the part of private interests. Today there are only eight areas earmarked for urban renewal, including the three that council has acted upon.

Much remains to be done before the latest City Hall move can produce concrete results. An important element is the speed with which approval can be received from the federal and provincial authorities. It will also be necessary to make a thorough survey of the three areas slated for urban renewal to determine the actual need for new housing.

SAVED FROM SQUALID CHAOS

More Idiots Than Wise Men Found in Municipal Planning

By TONY EMERY

I SUPPOSE it is the lack of trees on the prairie that makes the tree-lined streets of the little towns in North Dakota and Minnesota so attractive, by contrast.

And since they have banished their wires and cables underground to the place where such things belong in any civilized community, they have a quiet charm that is irresistible. We hit the Mississippi valley at Little Falls, and were struck by the way in which the towns along the river all the way to Minneapolis had made intelligent use of the river banks as a civic "amenity."

When Nature gives you something like this to work with, only an idiot would pass up the opportunity—but you have only to keep your eyes open when you are travelling to observe that there are more idiots than wise men to be found in municipal planning, to judge by the mess some communities have managed to make of their raw landscape material.

Minneapolis-St. Paul is a pretty large industrial complex, and yet it is saved from the squalid chaos common in such cases by the size and number of its parks and open spaces. The Art Institute stands looking out on one of these parks in Minneapolis, and is well worth going some way to visit.

If you are fond of Georgian silver or Italian Renaissance furniture you will probably know about their collection already, but it was something I hadn't heard about, and I was very impressed by the number and quality of their choice objects.

They also have some complete rooms furnished in the style of the Elizabethan, Queen Anne, Early American and Late Georgian periods. The pieces have been assembled with scrupulous attention to accuracy of historical detail, and are very skilfully displayed; everything on show comes from some old house in Connecticut or England or Virginia, right down to the panelling which has been salvaged and re-installed, to act as a perfect setting for the furniture and background for the paintings and tapestries that hang on them.

The permanent collection of painting is an impressive one, with important works by El Greco, Terbrugghen, Chardin and Guardi among the older masters; and outstanding examples from the hands of Courbet, Corot, Matisse, Beckmann, and Soutine among the painters of the last hundred years.

There are two Monets in the gallery which provide a very interesting and instructive comparison even though neither is a great work by this fine painter. One of them was painted at Le Havre in 1865 when Monet was twenty-five, and learning a lot from Boudin; it is hung next to a view of Trouville by Boudin, painted in the same year, and that is also educative; the other Monet dates from the last two or three years of his life, and is one of the celebrated "Waterlilies" series so influential in the last twenty years.

If you like contemporary painting there are works by Marca-Relli, Afro, Baziotis and Larry Rivers which you should see; and for aficionados of sculpture the Institute offers small but impressive works by Paolozzi, Brancusi, Barlach, and Conagra, along with bronzes by Degas, Matisse and Renoir.

Altogether a remarkable collection—and Minneapolis-St. Paul is only a little larger than Vancouver and district, in terms of population.

It also harbours the Walker Art Centre, a privately-endowed institution which was showing a hand-picked selection of Adolph Gottlieb's work since 1950, featuring the development of Gottlieb's celebrated one-two punch: a faint to the midriff followed by an explosive right to the jaw.

But the important thing about the Art Centre at this moment, of course, is the brand-new Tyrone Guthrie Theatre, which exists as a theatre in its own right, and is also the auditorium for the art centre, and showcase for the musical life of the city, where you can hear everything from string quartets to Sonny Rollins.

Architecturally, the theatre is very stimulating. The facade is a big glass wall screened by a skeletal frame which looks like the result of a collaboration between Mondrian and John Tunnard; it has no other function than to provoke and stimulate the approaching theatre-goer, arousing in him a pleasurable anticipation of the delights within.

Inside, the space has been wonderfully used to produce a theatre that "works" and yet at the same time can be looked at with enjoyment when nothing at all is going on.

The auditorium walls are black, to focus attention on the stage, and the wall-surfaces are set at different angles one to another, and are irregularly shaped, catching and dodging the light in a fascinating way.

If this sounds a "busy" interior it is because Ralph Rapson is better at designing buildings than I am at describing them: the effect is not "busy" at all, but rather jewel-like. And this effect is heightened by the harlequin-colored seats, which glow richly when the house-lights are on.

I saw the Douglas Campbell production of Moliere's "The Miser," and found it very diverting. He had brought a great deal of ingenuity to the problem of staging it; the decor and costumes were well up to Tanya Moisevitch's high standards; Hume Cronyn as Harpagon and Zoe Caldwell as Frosine were masterly and there was Miss Rita Gam to look at, for good measure.

In the intermission I strolled in the sculpture court among pieces by Butler, Giacometti, Moore, Marino and Kolbe, to drop a few more names. Altogether a good evening in and around an exciting theatre.

X-Rays Are Not Dangerous

Every so often I get a letter which shows me that many people are being too badly frightened by alarming articles on X-rays and other forms of radiation—articles which, for the past 10 years or more, have been appearing in lay magazines. I have read many of them, and have been distressed to see them because I could not believe they were justified.

Many years ago I knew as good friends most of the early leaders in X-ray work—men who, like me, had used the rays in the first few years of this century. Although many of us in those early years were much more careless of exposure to the rays than men are today, very few of us ever got into any trouble that could definitely be ascribed to the rays.

A few of the old-timers had much trouble with cancerous changes in the burned skin of their hands; but I cannot remember many of those old friends who died prematurely, or who died of a disease such as chronic leukemia, which could conceivably have been ascribed to the radiation.

I knew the children of a number of these men—and so far as I remember, they were normal. Hence it is that to me it seems foolish to worry about having one's teeth or one's chest, or even one's stomach X-rayed once a year.

One point which may perhaps cheer those who are much afraid of X-rays is that recently, with the coming of a much faster film,

X-ray exposures are being cut down in a remarkable way. Today the exposure required for making a film of a tooth has been cut from several seconds to a fraction of a second.

A number of men have tried to frighten us by saying that the X-rays to which we are exposed will injure our grandchildren—but I doubt this. I was glad recently to read the report of a committee of the U.S. Academy of Sciences in which they said that the genetic effects from small doses of atomic radiation are probably not as dangerous as some have thought.

Professors Neel and Schull, expert geneticists, who went to Japan to search for children who had been injured by the tremendous dose of radiation suffered by their mothers at Hiroshima, could not find effects that they could be sure were due to that radiation.

I should emphasize here that I have been talking about the small dosage of X-rays used in making diagnostic films. I am not talking about the big doses that have to be given to cure a cancer.

It has been shown that the later incidence of a disease like leukemia is a little higher in persons so treated than it is in the general population. But this fact would not bother me if I had a cancer that could be cured by some form of radiation. I would say, "Go ahead and save my life now; never mind what may happen 20 years from now."

A while ago I sat at luncheon with one of America's greatest atomic physicists, who is certainly competent to discuss this problem, and he said that he had no patience with the recent excitement stirred up about a few dozen X-ray exposures in a lifetime.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Daphne Blows the Family Horn

LONDON—Daphne du Maurier is bringing out what her publishers describe as "her finest novel." It's called "The Glass Blowers" and is the story of her ancestors, the Bussons of Le Maurier, who were in the glass-blowing industry at the time of the French Revolution.

Gauguin is holding an exhibition here in a couple of weeks' time of 130 of his latest paintings. Not the Gauguin, of course. This is his 64-year-old son Emile, who has been following in father's footsteps out there in Tahiti.

This is the first showing of his work outside the island and the paintings have been brought over by the French woman, Mme. Josette Giraud, who first encouraged him to have a go at painting, something he had steered clear of for fear that he might be ridiculed.

Emile Gauguin must be here for the exhibition, but Mme. Giraud hopes eventually to bring him to Europe, if only to see originals of his father's work. None of them, exists on the island—only reproductions and postcards of them for the tourist trade.

Gilbert and Sullivan, since the copyright in their comic operas lapsed early last year, haven't had their works unduly mutilated, as yet. Companies which did new productions last summer only mildly amended "The Mikado" and "HMS Pinafore."

But film producer Harold Baim of United Artists is being drastic in the series of G and S he's doing for the movies. The first, "The Cool Mikado," with the setting changed to New York gangsterland, he didn't dare to show the critics when it opened here recently.

Now he's getting ready to film "HMS Pinafore" down in Plymouth during Navy Week, with British comedian Frankie Howard starring, and then comes "The Gondoliers," with his Gondoliers, a football team. "We are not tampering with the lyrics," says Baim, "but as far as conventional Gilbert and Sullivan is concerned our versions will be utterly unrecognizable."

Lady Churchill for a change gets the limelight in the latest edition to Churchilliana. The new book, "My Darling Clementine," by Jack Fishman, which is just out here, tells what it's like being married to the great man.

Rush to Pay Under Way At City Hall

Victoria ratepayers flocked to City Hall Friday to pay their taxes.

"I'm very pleased with the response," said assessor-collector Alfred Joyce as he watched scores of property owners troop to the cashier.

Almost 15,000 tax bills have gone out in the mail in the past few days.

"These people seem to have been just waiting for their bills to arrive so they could pay them," said Mr. Joyce. "It certainly encourages."

One reason for the eagerness probably is that for most city homeowners this year the net tax outlay is smaller because council held the mill rate while the homeowners' grant was increased.

Mr. Joyce said several thousand tax notices sent to mortgage companies would be mailed next week.

Working Conditions Hit by Chatterton

OTTAWA (CP)—George Chatterton marked the second anniversary of his election to the House of Commons by complaining Friday about MPs' working conditions.

Mr. Chatterton, first elected as Conservative member for Esquimalt-Saanich in a 1961 byelection, said if his constituents knew how difficult the conditions are for MPs they would be sympathetic.

No MP had an office to himself. He had to share it with a secretary. And often the MPs had to share one office as well with another MP and his secretary.

The hours were long. Often the only chance to handle correspondence was on Saturdays and Sundays. Yet there was no dictation equipment. And there was no stenographic help of any kind between sessions.

And what good were train passes when an MP—such as himself—had to travel 3,000 miles to get home? The trip to Vancouver Island by train took eight days return.

Two TCA return passes also were provided for MPs. But despite the importance of keeping aware of constituency problems, this meant only two trips home a year.

Pious Life Long Life—Preacher

VANCOUVER (CP)—All his life, free lance evangelist John Reid has practiced what he preached.

A former steelmaker in Scotland, Mr. Reid used to tell congregations to be hard working. God fearing people.

Mr. Reid was 100 Thursday. He says the secret is hard work and an active interest in the church.

A steelmaker by profession, his real love was open air preaching.

"He used to say he was a preacher by profession and made steel to pay expenses," said his son, William, one of Mr. Reid's eight children.

He also has 18 grandchildren and 30 great-grandchildren.

Mr. Reid used to travel through North America as a Bible teacher and preacher at evangelistic churches, and until three years ago, preached occasionally at a chapel here.

One son, Duncan, is now a missionary in the Dominican Republic.

Mr. Reid has received messages of congratulations from the Queen, Premier Bennett and others.

Competition 'Costly' Between Universities

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mrs.

Frank Ross, University of British Columbia chancellor, called Friday for an end to "costly" competition among Canadian universities and advocated a national plan for higher education.

Speaking at the second day of convocation ceremonies at UBC, Mrs. Ross said more money is not the only answer to financial crises in universities.

"While each major university must continue to offer general undergraduate and professional courses," she said, "it may well be more economic to concentrate highly complex and costly advanced studies at strategic places selected across the country."

"If each university is to engage in fierce competition with all others, the best interests of the nation cannot be served."

Mrs. Ross said central planning for education could also work to encourage national unity and envisaged exchange of both students and staff between English and French-speaking universities.

She told 700 graduates and some 2,000 parents and friends that Canadian universities will become increasingly short of money as the student population grows.

By 1971, 312,000 students will be seeking higher education, she said.

"This means that in eight years we will see enrolment double and, in consequence, an unprecedented demand for highly qualified teaching staff."

Mrs. Ross said a national program to recruit and train professors should be started immediately.

The chancellor said it is unrealistic to expect every citizen to speak both French and English fluently, but said everyone should have enough knowledge to understand Canada's cultural heritage.

She said, however, there are historical and political impediments to such national planning, but that it is becoming necessary.

Following her remarks, Mrs. Ross conferred an honorary Doctor of Letters degree on Dr. Northrop Frye, principal of Victoria College at the University of Toronto.

In his address, Dr. Frye said a university of the future should be open "not merely to young people . . . but to adults with the leisure and willingness to explore once again the world of the mind."

Mercy Killing Doctor Suspended

LIEGE, Belgium (Reuters)—The Belgian Medical Association council today imposed a two-year suspension of Dr. Jacques Casters, the doctor involved in the thalidomide baby case here six months ago.

Casters, Mrs. Suzanne Vandeput, her husband, mother and sister, were all acquitted of complicity in the murder of seven-day-old Corinne Vandeput, who was born without arms after her mother took thalidomide during pregnancy.

Casters, who gave Mrs. Vandeput the tranquillizer, admitted he had prescribed the drug used to kill the deformed child.

France opposed such co-operation. The other five nations, led by West Germany, pressed for it hard—but in vain.

Ludwig Erhard, the man expected to be West Germany's next chancellor, left the meeting of market cabinet ministers saying:

"I don't give up hope, but no agreement was possible (Friday)."

The ministers decided to discuss the matter again June 18, but Erhard told reporters: "I don't think the problem will be ripe for discussion then."

French President de Gaulle is scheduled to see Erhard in Bonn June 5. It will be the first top-level policy consultation between France and West Germany under their new treaty.

Fallout Will Increase, But No Cause for Alarm

WASHINGTON (AP)—Largely because of last year's Soviet nuclear tests there will be an increase in fallout this year over North America. But the exposure to individuals is still too small to cause concern and a change in diet.

This report was made Friday by the Federal Radiation Council, a top-level United States government group that surveys available radiation data.

The fallout radiation an individual will take in more than 30 years is equivalent to 1.30th the amount he'll get from natural radiation in the soil, rocks and building materials, the report said.

There will probably be an increase in strontium-90 dosage to bone—an increase that will deliver to new bone formed this year radiation equal to one-fourth the natural background radiation.

CAUSES LEUKEMIA

But even that should drop in succeeding years as exposure to strontium-90 lessens, and there is a turnover in the normal growing processes of bone. Strontium-90 intake is believed to be a cause of bone cancer and leukemia, cancer of the blood.

The fallout figures, the council said, are "far short of figures which would cause concern," but spokesmen were hard put to say just what the figures of concern would be.

Soviet nuclear testing which produced the explosive capacity of 180 megatons in 1962 caught the primary blame. U.S. tests of much less total energy produced about one-fourth of the atom-splitting fission energy that creates radioactive fallout, the council said.

Strontium-90 in diet will probably show a four-fold increase this year compared with 1961, a two-fold increase compared with 1962. This will be reflected by a similar increase in the strontium-90 concentrations in human bone. New bone formed this year will take the highest concentrations before the concentration rate stabilizes by 1964.

Council spokesmen said that the guesswork estimates of risk because of fallout radiation, quoted in the council's report last year, are essentially true for this year.

The estimates were probably high last year, the spokesman said, and the increase this year still leaves the level low. The report last year estimated that perhaps as many as 40 leukemia and bone cancer deaths a year might be attributed to fallout, against 1,400 attributed to natural background radiation.

Of greater persistence and potential effect is the likelihood that the slight genetic risk estimated last year will in the long run be doubled by the latest round of testing. These are extremely long-range effects, since much of the fallout—largely carbon-14—won't be cleared from the atmosphere for a number of years—and because it has such a long radioactive life. It loses half of its radioactivity in 5,760 years.

When it finally becomes part of the earth's radiation environment, the carbon-14 produced by last year's tests will essentially double the natural levels of carbon-14.

This means essentially a doubling of the genetic hazard—but by last year's report at one chance in 1,000,000 that a physical or genetic defect can be attributed to fallout, council spokesmen said.

French Lovely Bares U.K. 'Oscar' Secrets

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — One of the best-kept secrets in the world of show business is the British Film Academy awards.

Everyone knows that Gregory Peck, Anne Bancroft and "Lawrence of Arabia" won Hollywood Oscars, but did you know that "Lawrence," Leslie Caron and Peter O'Toole won the English awards?

Instead of a statuette the English academy hands out a Wedgwood plaque with Apollo playing the Lyre handsomely etched above the recipient's name.

Miss Caron, the fetching French beauty, stopped by Hollywood this week to let it be known that she is, in the eyes of the British academy, the best actress of the year. Miss Bancroft won the "best foreign actress" award. Burt Lancaster (Birdman of Alcatraz) won "best foreign actor" laurels.

The closest Miss Caron has come to winning the Oscar was a nomination for her memorable performance in "Lili" in 1953. Her winning English performance was for "The L-Shaped Room," soon to be released in this country.

Looking as chic as any French beauty could possibly look in a nubby yellow Dior suit, Leslie is as piquantly beautiful as ever.

"I have won the British award once before — as the best foreign actress for 'Lili'." Leslie said with a touch of pride. "I'm still a French citizen, but the English insist that if you appear in a British picture you qualify for best British actress. If you appear in a French, Italian or American film you are automatically foreign."

Leslie was asked why the awards in Blighty are kept so hush-hush.

"Well, to begin with they are presented by Prince Philip," she said. "And they are wonderful to win because the performers just have to bow or curtsy when the award is presented."

"All the talking is done by the Prince, who usually says something like, 'Jolly well done.'"

He is in charge of the entire award program, and only one photographer is allowed to shoot pictures. There is a television camera allowed, too, but that is all.

"The English papers carried very little news about the awards, and only two or two pictures."

Though she's still a French citizen, Leslie pays English taxes. She is married to English director Peter Hall and makes her home in London.

Leslie, who prouetted her way to stardom as a ballerina only to give up dancing to become a straight dramatic actress, also has made her first French movie, "Three Stories of Love."

"It was a strange experience acting in French," she said. "In every other picture I've done I spoke English."

Miss Caron may not be aware of the fact, but she speaks an international language and male moviegoers the world over get her message loud and clear.

'SAINT JOAN' DISAPPOINTED—OFF-BEAT PETER PAN ON LIST

Rewards in Store at Vancouver Festival

By AUDREY JOHNSON

VANCOUVER — With four more shows still open in the Vancouver International Festival, including an unconventional "Peter Pan" with a boy playing Peter and the Indians as west coast types complete with totems, there may yet be some rewarding things in store for festival audiences.

But even without forecasting such probable highlights as Cathleen Nesbitt's performance in "Importance of Being Earnest," Friday night's presentation of Shaw's "Saint Joan" will remain visually an impressive memory. For those who disagreed with Wolfgang Roth's sets for "Macbeth," and Yannopoulos' direction, "Saint Joan" was a clear vindication in both instances.

In contrast to the overwhelming scenic units that dwarfed Macbeth's human figures of tragedy, there was a beautiful symmetrical simplicity about the "Joan" design that, providing the acting techniques had been broad and strong enough, would have permitted an uninhibited range of expression.

Aesthetic Delights

A circular central stage plan, highly imaginative use of drops, scrim front curtain and lighting, color reserved for wonderful glowing effects of richness and accent these were aesthetic delights.

Direction, so far as the stage picture was concerned, was superb, rising to brilliant at times; notably in the scene at the Dauphin's court and in the trial scene.

The lack of enthusiasm on the part of a patchy audience was due, undoubtedly to the utter ineptitude of the central character and to a devastatingly slow pace that was almost unrelieved even in the climaxes.

Much to Learn

Young Hollywood rising star Susan Kohner has a pleasant personality, and in the very different medium of film and television has shown distinct promise. But she has a great deal to learn about acting on the live stage and everything to learn about "Joan."

She has no range for it and no ability to phrase or develop the role. She was a nice little girl playing a game of pretend that never went more than skin deep.

Payne a Standout

With an ineffective Joan, there is of course, no play really. But a few performances rate a comment, particularly Sam Payne's as De Stogumber. In general the character was strongly realized and in the particular instance of his frenzied agony of guilt at the end, it was powerful and moving.

Well Done

A vital performance was provided by Roy Brinson as the Archbishop of Rheims. Also in the cast were John Sparks, Karl Wyle and Ted Stidder, all former Victorians. They were among several who were responsible for good individual bits.

However, the over-all production was underkeyed for the auditorium and this combined with Shaw's excessively long speeches created a sense of dullness that set many heads drooping before the evening was half over.

Tars to Star In Sunset Show With Field Guns

The first sunset ceremony of the summer to be performed by the Pacific Command of the Royal Canadian Navy will take place on the lawns of the Legislative Buildings tonight at 8:30.

The colorful ceremony will be performed by a 48-man guard, made up of men under training at the Fleet School in HMCS Naden, and the 45-piece Naden Band. Sub-Lieut. Nigel Whiteley, RCN (R) will be in charge of the guard, while the band will be conducted by Commissioned Officer Thomas Milner.

Two field guns' crews of eighteen men each, will be under the direction of Petty Officer Lloyd Ferguson.

Lieut. C. N. Humble, of the Operations and Weapons Division of the Fleet School, is responsible for the training of the guard and guns' crews and the overall coordination of the display.

Comedy-Spoof Ends Season at Theatre Guild

Peter Ustinov's zany cartoon of life in the diplomatic corps, which is also to some degree a re-arrangement of one of Will Shakespeare's famous plots, is the up-coming Victoria Theatre Guild production.

In the cast are Cliff Clarke, Helen Peaker, Ken Bostock, Margaret Newberry, Robert Price, Gem Hewlett, Vera Friedrich, Micky Muir, Peter Johnston, George Paxton, Robert Lutes, Danny Christian and Gillian Farr.

MARCO POLO Rory Calhoun Capitol Theatre

It took Marco Polo almost 3 1/2 years to travel from Venice, Italy, to Peking, China. Some of the adventures he described while held as a prisoner of war between Venice and Genoa are the basis of this 95-minute Cinemascope spectacle—but the general atmosphere is more suggestive of Hollywood than of 13th century China.

Tall, romantic Rory Calhoun, with his spectacular horseback antics, is more a Western-type hero than a historic world traveller, and when he drops from a tree on to the back of a pursuing Mongol, I am irresistibly reminded of our boyhood hero, the late Douglas Fairbanks, Sr.

I am sure the youngsters will love this American International version of Marco Polo, which gives Rory Calhoun plenty of scope in the way of fastiduous, last-minute rescues and nimble-footed sword-fighting (the more ad- versaries the better, for the death rate is high with Rory around).

Much more in keeping with Marco's time is the winsome Japanese actress Yoko Tani, effectively cast as the Princess Amuroy, daughter of the Great Khan of China. Camillo Pilotto also harmonizes with the period in his restrained dignified performance as the Khan, but the Hollywood atmosphere returns in the person of Mongka, his villainous first minister, as played by Robert Hundar. It is just a little too ferocious.

In color and spectacle, the screen "Marco Polo" is well up to standard. There are sweeping panoramic shots of mighty battles and full-size replicas of the Great Wall of China, the Temple of a Hundred Buddhas and the handsome sailing ships of Marco's merchant fleet.

The storming of Peking, aided by history's first known cannon bombardment, is powerfully re-enacted, along with the rich pageantry of the Court of the Great Khan and the fearsome torture chambers below.

The background of the film is faithful to Marco Polo's record of 13th century China—far ahead of Europe in mechanical development at that time and the building of the first gun-powder weapons.

Director Hugo Fregonese keeps the action in high gear most of the time and there is a dramatic musical score by Les Baxter.

Sketches Show Artist 'With His Hair Down'

By DONALD HARVEY

Drawings of artists present a personal and most intimate glimpse of the man behind the paintings.

Harvey

The immediacy and lack of concern for finish in their execution exempt them, usually, from the preciousness that a more prolonged work may manifest. Sketches, studies and informational drawings are done as a means to an end, and like the writers' notebook, contain idiosyncrasies and a directness of style which, though inconclusive, are often more characteristic of the individual's expression.

Caught with his hair down the artist comes nearer to the viewer in terms of human understanding.

At the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria there is, at the present time, an exhibit tion of Old Masters' drawings culled from various American College collections. The extent of the exhibition covers much of the spread of the Renaissance from Italy across Europe, from Mannerism through Baroque to the Rococo; though it is without representation of the High Renaissance itself in Italy.

However, few exhibitions would contain drawings by the Italian giants, Leonardo, Raphael and Michelangelo and there is ample compensation in this show with drawings by Watteau, Turner, Constable, Tiopolo and other major artists.

The powerful rolling drawings of the Italians, Tintoretto (school of), Guercino, Tiepolo, Carracci give way to the more delicate, lyrical world of Watteau, Robert and other French draughtsmen. Even Pussin is much less severe in the drawings shown here than in his paintings and seems more flexible than the rigid classicist we think of.

HERCULES AND ANTAEUS
... by Giovanni Domenico Tiepolo.

A WRITER'S DIARY

By HUGH MacLENNAN

I have just read with fascination the true life story of one of the greatest ladies I have ever encountered in the pages of a book. Exquisite in appearance, profoundly feminine, she moves with the grace of a princess and converses with the grave dignity of a mother superior whose experience has taught her much more about life than she will permit herself to utter.

Deeply moral, she is saddened by the sexual corruption which has developed in her country since the war, and saddened most of all by the bad manners and (as she understands it), the false values of her own daughter, who has attended the university and acquired the veneer of Americanism.

The name of this lady is Tsuya-Giku and by profession she is a geisha. The book in which I made her acquaintance is Sara Harris' House of 19,000 Pleasures.

Tsuya-Giku was born Kimiko Yamamoto, daughter of a poor farmer in an over-populated district. In 1923, when she was seven years old, her parents, who loved her dearly, sold her to the madam of Plum Tree House in Kyoto for 15,000 yen, the sale being the sole alternative to starvation and eviction for the whole family.

Three years later Kimoko was formally adopted by the madam as daughter and renamed Tsuya-Giku, which means "Chrysanthemum Dew."

A Pool to Reflect Man's Mind

In Plum Tree House she underwent a training as arduous and disciplined as any proposed by the strictest of convents.

She was trained in speech, dance, acting, singing, gymnastics, deportment and all the multifarious arts of love which had developed over the centuries in a society which always had regarded physical love-making as the supreme experience, not casually to be acquired and as subtle and difficult to master in its infinite shades of variation as the ballet.

In the height of her beauty and fame as a geisha, Tsuya-Giku was sold by Plum Tree House to an elderly count who became her danna (protector) and entered into a delicate relationship of mutual respect with the princess, her danna's wife. Tsuya-Giku was then known, as one-of-the-most beautiful and gracious ladies of Japan.

"The traditional Japanese geisha," writes Sara Harris, "is gentle, tender and incredibly young, no matter what her true age. She is pure animal woman, the ultimate of feminine essence, never asking what she wants or feels, and content if a man but achieve contentment through her.

"She is a beautiful pool that reflects a man's mind—and this is what makes her so beloved—his own previously unrealized feelings."

In brief, the geisha is as dedicated to men, to the preservation of their well-being, their mental balance and their competence as leaders, as the sisters of a religious order are dedicated to their God.

Later in Miss Harris' book appears another Japanese woman who had once been the trial-wife of the brother of the geisha.

When Miss Harris met her she was Kofumi Levine, her husband being an American sergeant born of strict Orthodox parents in Brooklyn. But between the geisha's brother and the American sergeant had come for Kofumi a period in which she had become a pan-pan (streetwalker) in order to earn a living:

Heir to a Thousand Frustrations

"In sharp contrast to the geisha is the pan-pan. Her story is not only valuable for itself, but also for its insight into the maleficent side of the Japanese man.

The brothel girls and streetwalkers know perhaps better than anyone else that the tragedy of their country is this: the Japanese man, hedged in always by demands of group responsibility (especially to the honorable elders), heir to a thousand lifetime frustrations growing out of the constant repression of human feelings, must sometimes boil over and seek an escape valve in the performance of cold-blooded, meaningless atrocities.

No wonder the prostitute is the natural sacrificial goat to this combustible cruelty."

When the war ended, both these Japanese women inevitably encountered Americans, and their feelings about the conquerors differed widely. Kofumi fell in love with Stanley Levine, and married him.

Americans Impossible to Make Happy

This was certainly the case with the shy Stanley Levine, who had never known happiness before he married Kofumi, which he did despite the warning from his parents that they would hold shiva if he married a Japanese.

He lived with Kofumi in Tokyo in an American suburb known as Washington Heights! Meanwhile Tsuya-Giku, her danna having died while awaiting trial as a war criminal, had returned to her old profession, and was said because so many of her customers were Americans who were impossible to charm, make happy or even to instruct.

She differed sharply with Kofumi on America, and when the former pan-pan expressed the desire to live in America should she have daughters, Tsuya-Giku asked: "Why do you not, since your heart leads you to America, do your utmost to make Stanley-san take you there?"

Kofumi answered: "Because it would not be to Stanley-san's advantage to return to America. America has hurt Stanley-san, and Japan has comforted him."

"You see how it is, Sara-san," said Tsuya-Giku to Miss Harris. "Kofumi cannot escape being what she is—a Japanese woman."

Japan, one reads, is the most Americanized of all Asiatic countries, but this book left me wondering. How deep can Americanization really go unless it succeeds in infecting strange populations with the Judeo-Christian consciousness of sexual guilt.

For that matter has not Americanization, in this deepest sense, already failed with American Negroes, and is not the fact that many southern American men prefer Negro women to whites (read Lillian Smith and Erskine Caldwell if you doubt this) the chief reason why southern society, at bottom a matriarchy, tries to prevent segregation.

Love of Genre

The Flemish and Dutch masters have a chunky healthiness in their love of genre—Bosch, with his Breughel-like observations of peasants at their chores, and Ostade's humble yet humorously observant interior scene, which shows the beneficial influence of Rembrandt.

There are works in most drawing media including sanguine—a red chalk made popular during the eighteenth century as cheaper art originals were in demand by the growing middle class. There are chiaroscuro drawings by Romney and Constable, where the grey paper is used as a middle tone and pencil and white chalk used as gradations on either side.

To show that those who merit the title of Old Masters are not infallible there are patent shortcomings in some of the works. The drawing of Mrs. Lushington, by Rossetti, is a poor one. This is strange, since Rossetti was no mean draughtsman and besides being a competent painter was an excellent book illustrator. Perhaps it is kinder to question the authenticity of the drawing than its merit.

Local Showing

Thomas Rowlandson, water-colourist and caricaturist is represented by a small tinted pen drawing of "The Gallant Surprised"—a theme of cuckoldry dear to his (and Hogarth's) heart.

The exhibition is a major one for the Gallery and offers much for all who visit it. Not too often does one get the opportunity to see three hundred years of drawings which do some justice to a survey of the period. The exhibition closes on June 16th.

Sounds of Victoria—Cathedral bells, Victoria Day Parade, schoolyard laughter... chit chat between Norman Cribbens and myself, and excerpts from some very old 78 platters from Norm's collection of records—these were the ingredients of a recent "tape letter" to Bill Ward's Doghouse program in Vancouver.

This tape was fun to make—and very easy too—with a Dual turntable and a Dual TG-15 Tape Recorder with separate phono and microphone controls to permit professional fading and mixing of two sound sources.

Why not try it yourself on a Dual? Create your own disc jockey show. Learn a language with sound on sound, try a Les Paul-Mary Ford multiple recording routine, tape-create your home movie sound tracks.

You'll enjoy taping and listening on a Dual Tape Recorder—3 speeds, 4 tracks, dynamic microphone, excellent sound—only $259.50. Incidentally, its stereo playback head makes the Dual TG-15 an ideal companion to your stereo hi-fi set.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

The new Canadian dollar stamp—the first of this denomination since 1953—makes its appearance June 14. It is not likely that there will be the usual rush to get off "first day covers," for at $1 a sheet they will run into money. For the same reason there were very few FDC's of the totem dollar, and these are listed in Holmes' catalogue at $25 each, though the market is not too brisk at this price.

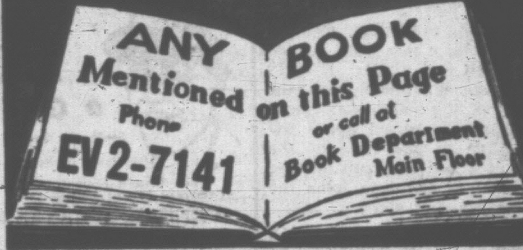

The new stamp, printed in red, features Canada's export trade. It shows a close-up of a large shipping crate, with the word "Canada" stencilled on it, which is apparently in the process of being loaded onto a freighter (not shown). The background is a map of the world.

A. L. Pollock of Toronto is the designer, and the stamp comes in sheets of 50, all from Plate 1. It will be overprinted "G" for official use, and will be difficult to get thus in use, as nearly all the government offices use meter mailing.

Edward Albee's play "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" will star Kate Reid of Toronto on Broadway this fall.

Select Shrubs On Long-Term Beauty Basis

Too often homeowners are apt to select a shrub for planting on their home grounds purely on the basis of flower color or flower fragrance.

In selecting shrubs, the expert suggests choosing those that do something throughout many seasons of the year. Some shrubs, for example, are attractive only when they are in bloom but have little appeal the rest of the year.

TRENCH SYSTEM OUTLINED

Enrich Soil With Waste From Lawn and Kitchen

By JACK BEASTALL

The advent of the rotary lawn mower has deprived many gardeners of lawn clippings which are excellent for the improving of any kind of garden soil. Those having reel-type mowers with grass catchers can still obtain the benefit of this garden waste.

Scattered on beds and borders, the clippings can be lightly forked into the surface soil where they will assist in holding moisture, prevent the cracking of heavy clays and gradually decompose into useful humus.

A piece of spare ground can be improved by opening a trench about six to eight inches deep and depositing the clippings; each time the lawn is cut.

The soil from this first trench is moved to the other end of the plot where it will be used to fill the final trench.

Fertilizer and Water

After the trench bottom is covered with about one inch of clippings, sprinkle a little complete fertilizer on top, water well, and then cover with one to two inches of soil taken from adjoining ground where the next trench is to be.

In this way, as the first trench is filled so the second trench is prepared, and it is astonishing the number of trenches that can be filled before the lawn mowing season ends.

Of course, tea leaves, coffee grounds, vacuum cleaner dust, hair from humans and animals, chicken feathers, and chopped-up kitchen waste can be added to the trenches along with the clippings.

All this material will become partially decomposed over winter and be thoroughly mixed with the soil as digging proceeds next spring.

A piece of ground treated in this manner makes a fine vegetable or flower patch the following year. In fact, some gardeners make the trenches between the rows of vegetables during the growing season.

Hold Moisture

Lawn clippings can also be used as a surface mulch around raspberries, young fruit trees, and newly planted shrubs and ornamental trees, to prevent the rapid loss of moisture from the root area and to keep the soil cool.

When mulching is mentioned, it should be pointed out that here on the West Coast we use mulches in summer for the reasons stated above.

This is a little confusing to gardeners from other parts of Canada where mulching is practiced in late fall after the soil has frozen, to prevent alternate freezing and thawing which is detrimental to plants in colder climates.

Here we dare not mulch plants in our mild, wet winters because they rot away beneath the protective covering and losses are considerably greater than when the plants are exposed to the weather.

Thick Mulch Needed

Going back to summer mulching with lawn clippings, it is important that the mulch be at least two inches thick to be of benefit to the plants.

Because grass clippings are known to generate an amazing amount of heat as they decompose, many gardeners are afraid to use more than a thin scattering on the soil.

A large pile of fresh green clippings will certainly become dangerously hot, but an inch or two scattered on the ground around a tree or shrub will never heat to the danger point. Such a layer, soon loses its green coloring and becomes harmless, and more can be added the next time the lawn is trimmed without fear of heating.

Other mulching materials, such as straw, spoiled hay and cut long grass, need to be six inches deep since these are "loose" materials that do not pack and exclude air to the same extent as fine, short trimmings from the lawn.

Watch Soil Levels

Before mulching dwarfed fruit trees which were planted last fall and winter, or early this spring, make sure the level of the soil has not been accidentally raised above the swelling at the base of the trunk where the fruit bearing portion of the tree joins the dwarfing root stock.

This swelling, or budding point as it is called, should be always two inches above soil level so that the upper portion does not put out its own roots and overcome the effect of the dwarfing stock.

If the soil is found to be too high, scrape it away. Do not worry if a depression is left for it will assist in holding water where it is most needed.

Conversely, newly planted rose bushes should have the swelling, or budding point, two inches BELOW the soil surface, since the purpose for budding roses is not to keep them dwarfed, and roots from the upper portion of the bush are often beneficial.

Kitchen Range Selling-Point

When builders ask the ladies what they think is the biggest advantage to them in moving into a new home, the most frequent answer is: the pleasure of being able to work in a sparkling, modern kitchen.

Proof of this can be found in the ready sale of homes equipped with new built-in, slide-in or free-standing gas and electric ranges that lend themselves to more efficient kitchen layout, are easier to clean, and boost the kinds of automation that are missing in older cooking equipment.

Creating Own Patio an Absorbing Project

By ALLAN SWENSON

A patio or terrace provides extra family pleasure in outdoor living.

If you want the patio for lounging and entertaining, plan it close to the house, with easy access to kitchen or living room. If you want it for outdoor cooking and eating, locate it farther from the house, with the fireplace at the farthest side.

The simplest terrace to build is of flagstones or lightweight concrete blocks sunk in a bed of sand. Bricks are decorative; however, they are more work to lay. You may want treated blocks of end-grain wood, such as redwood, old railroad ties or telephone poles cut into sections four inches deep. Sink the wood in creosote if the blocks are not already treated against rot.

Use a carpenter's level, stakes and twine to outline the patio area. Slope the surface one or two inches in every 12 feet away from the house. If the soil contains clay, dig it out and fill in with three inches of cinders or fine gravel, covered with two inches of tamped sand. If the soil is sandy or well drained, four inches of sand is adequate. Many flagstone patios have been put right on the unprepared surface of light soil. Winter tends to make soil heave, however. Weeds and grass between the stones are a nuisance, too. If you build under a tree, raise the level of the entire terrace slightly with sand, rather than digging down and cutting tree roots.

Landscaping the patio depends on the screening you want from busy areas, to prevent cross-traffic and the kind of flowers, shrubs and plants you enjoy most.

For tall screening use privet, hemlock or other hedge plants set one and one-half to two feet apart. If you have room for large shrubs, laurel, inkberry, Andromeda, ilex and yews are good evergreens. Forsythia, spirea, lilac, kerria and pepper bush also make good, large screens.

For a narrow space, a basket weave or picket fence makes a good screen that still lets the breeze through on hot days. Firethorn, ivy and Virginia creeper make good vines for covering a fence, as do bitter-sweet and climbing euonymus.

Many people like a low post-and-rail fence with climbing roses or hybrid tea roses. But if your terrace is small, better blend it into the lawn with a small border of annual flowers at one side. You can plant bulbs in the bed for early spring color.

If patio stones are bedded in sand, thyme and moss make an interesting pattern planted in the cracks. They are neater than grass, stand traffic and don't need mowing.

Lottery Proposal Backed by Mayors

TORONTO (CP) — A resolution asking for national or provincial lotteries was passed Friday by the annual conference of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

The resolution requires that proceeds go to public health, education, hospital construction or similar purposes.

Reeve A. M. Campbell of Scarborough, Ont., chairman of the resolutions committee, said on introducing the resolution to the floor that the committee could not recommend it.

He said a British royal commission in 1948 found that only one-eighth of the money invested in a lottery ever got to charitable institutions.

George Hebert, mayor of Arvida, Que., rose to back the resolution, telling the delegates: "Get your heads out of the sand. People are gambling now. Why not direct it into public service?"

Alderman A. Bell-irving of Vancouver attacked the resolution saying: "Lotteries are just a means of making the poor pay for what they get. Rich people don't buy lottery tickets. Only poor countries have lotteries."

The resolution was brought to the vote by the clock and it was carried 75 to 43.

Mayor Lloyd Henderson of Portage la Prairie, Man., advocated Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa be offered as a raffle prize.

Earlier this week Mayor Whitton referred to Mayor Henderson as a "Prairie gopher" and "the man who received one vote when he ran against Mr. Pearson for national Liberal leader."

Alderman Hugh John McKim of Edmonton moved that a resolution asking easing of the Criminal Code to allow charitable institutions to use bingo and raffles be tabled because, he said, "the Criminal Code is outside the jurisdiction of this conference. We must stick to municipal affairs."

The request for tabling was defeated and the resolution was passed with a vote of 99 to 71.

'CASH AND CARRY'

LUSAKA, Northern Rhodesia (Reuters) — A Negro court has ordered full payment of fees "for services rendered" to a medicine man who claims he enabled a childless couple to have a baby.

The father of the child, Phillip Mberoko, agreed that the medicine man, Jordan Zanjilimodzi, helped but he wanted to pay £2 ($6) down and the remaining £8 ($24) when the baby walked.

The medicine man sued for immediate payments in full.

Near-Sighted Crew Burned Bridal Bed

WIGAN, England (Reuters) — Barry and Maureen Salter spent their wedding night on the floor—because local garbage collectors took away their bed by mistake.

Friday they went to Wigan municipal sanitation department to ask for it back.

They were told the bridal bed had been burned in a mixup over an old tin bathtub.

Barry, 19, and Maureen, 17, were given the double bed, almost new, by his parents as a wedding gift. It was left in the yard of the couple's house.

Just before the newlyweds returned from the reception Thursday garbage men called, overlooked a rusty bathtub they were supposed to collect, and bundled the bed away to the incinerator.

Principal Demands Lusty Anthem Singing

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Students at nearby West Whalley Junior High School have been kept after school twice because they didn't sing the national anthem loud and clear.

There was poor vocal response during weekly assemblies, said Gerard Mason, principal of the 600-student school in suburban Whalley.

He said he would keep the students in late any time he wasn't satisfied with the response at the weekly assembly period.

More Scope For Women In Japan

Canada is a land where men are men and women "are thought to be very different."

That's the opinion of a Japanese woman-lawyer, Miss Kinko Saito, who visited Victoria Friday.

Miss Saito said her profession is an example of what she means. In Japan women lawyers are more readily accepted than in Canada.

"Here you have jobs that are thought to be for men only or for women only. You don't look kindly on trespassing."

Miss Saito has been in Canada for six months studying the legal system here. She is now on her way home at the end of her United Nations Human Rights fellowship.

BETTER PRACTICE

While generally impressed with the Canadian legal system, Miss Saito said there is one way in which Japan has a better practice.

There every accused person can obtain free legal aid. Such aid is paid for by the government and is provided by the bar association.

She said in Canada only those accused of serious crimes receive free legal advice.

ACT CHANGES BENEFIT TOURISTS

Car Impounding Dropped

Starting today police will not be impounding cars involved in B.C. accidents.

It is part of a series of wide-ranging changes in the Motor Vehicles Act, approved by the legislature in March, which come into effect today.

Instead of impounding vehicles involved in accidents, police will now put them in a safe place of their own choosing and remove the licence plates.

Tourists will benefit from a new goodwill attitude if they get in a smash, too.

Insurance policies or financial responsibility cards will be considered proof of coverage. A quick check of the documents will be all that is required.

There is a new law for hot-rodgers, too.

They cannot cut their cars too low. No part may be lower than the wheel rims.

SIRENS RESTRICTED

Another new section of the act prevents use of sirens by ambulance drivers unless they are on an emergency run. They may only sound off to clear a way through traffic that would otherwise block them, and must conform to all other normal traffic laws. Ambulances will use a flashing light instead.

Garbage dumpers now face a fine of up to $300 if they litter a highway or adjoining right-of-way.

All motorists must now stop when a school bus is loading or unloading as long as the driver of the bus is flashing a red light. Previously this only applied to buses of all types outside business districts.

School buses must also stop at all railway crossings and proceed across without changing gears.

STRABISMUS

Strabismus or squint is the condition where the eyes are turned from their normal position either inwards or outwards. When the eyes are not in their normal position two greatly different images are presented... one from each eye. This is very confusing to the brain and the person will see double for a time and then one image will be ignored, and only one eye is used in seeing. The result is a lowering of vision in the unused eye. This condition is particularly serious in childhood because if one eye goes unused for even a short time, then there will be little or no vision in that eye later in life. Squint can very often be overcome with glasses or visual training or both but sometimes an operation is required to straighten the eyes. It is advisable to have your eyes examined at least every two years.

Be Different, and Proud Of It, Canadians Advised

By JIM NEAVES

WINNIPEG (CP)—A doctor from England said here Thursday more individual thought is needed in Canada.

Dr. Peter Peacock, Saskatoon medical health officer, said in an interview Canada needs people "who are prepared to be different and not ashamed to be."

Dr. Peacock, born in England and in practice for a time in South Africa, was a panelist during a discussion of mental health at the annual convention of the Canadian Public Health Association.

He said many Canadians hide talents that set them apart because "we have made such a god of democratic equality."

There is an "incredible degree of uniformity" in Prairie houses, gardens, streets and buildings. "It's hard to tell what town you're in—they all look alike."

He said this situation is unhealthy from a mental standpoint and there was no "ready" answer to the question of conformity.

"We'll just have to keep on explaining that it's not always in advantage to be average."

During the panel discussion Dr. Peacock said Canadian standards of behavior are too rigid.

"There is a rigidity... which we must try to break down if people who deviate slightly — though not significantly — from the pattern are not to feel out of step."

The majority of people enter mental hospitals not because they want to "but because there is family or public rejection of their behavior patterns. The local general practitioner, with a sense of helplessness, bows his head to public opinion."

Earlier Thursday, in a panel discussion on school health services, Dr. K. I. G. Benson of Victoria, assistant British Columbia health officer, said routine school medical examinations should be discontinued.

A recent provincial survey "found that year after year 85 per cent of children examined in schools had no physical, mental or emotional defects."

Time taken for these examinations could be used in other aspects of health education.

Dr. O. H. Curtis, deputy health minister for Prince Edward Island, was elected president of the association, succeeding Dr. K. C. Charron of Ottawa.

SMOKING A HAZARD

The association decided Thursday to actively support measures directed toward removing what it termed health hazards from cigarette smoking.

In a resolution the CPHA said it "accepts the evidence that cigarette smoking is a major cause of lung cancer and contributes to illness and death from other diseases of the lungs and cardiovascular system."

Another resolution opposed a royal commission on a government recommendation that the nutrition division of the national department of health be assigned to the maternal and child health division.

"The best interests of health, as related to nutrition, are best served by retaining the division in the department of health."

The accident prevention committee of the CPHA was requested to consult with the federal health department to facilitate collection of accident data for prevention programs.

More than 400 public health specialists from all parts of Canada, the United States and England attended the three-day convention.

Plane Douses Three Blazes

Three forest fires in a week have been struck out by the big Martin Mars water bomber.

The latest was a 45-acre fire at Memekay, near Sayward on northern Vancouver Island on Thursday.

The 42-ton flying boat made nine "drops" on the fire, leaving ground crews to perform mop-up operations.

The fire had been advancing through slash towards felled and bucked timber, and was about 1,500 feet long when the big black plane dropped its load.

A fire southwest of Honey-moon Bay was destroyed by the Mars last week, and one near Lake Cowichan was taken out on Monday.

The water bomber is operated by Forest Industries Flying Tankers, Ltd.

Third Socred Resigns From Quebec Wing

QUEBEC (CP) — Louis Frechette, defeated Social Credit candidate in Quebec South in the April 8 federal election, announced Wednesday night he was resigning from the Quebec wing of the party.

Earlier Wednesday, Raymond Bleney and Roger Lemieux, members of the executive of the Montmagny-Ilelet constituency, announced their resignations, also in letters to Laurier Legault, president of Le Rassemblement des Creditistes, Quebec wing of the party.

Mr. Frechette said he disapproved of the Quebec wing's attitude to the six Social Credit MPs who announced their support for the Liberal party and later repudiated their statement.

"I also disapprove of Real Caouette deputy national leader of the party and head of the Quebec wing and range myself beside Robert Thompson," he said in a telephone interview.

Mr. Bleney earlier took the same political position and Mr. Lemieux also said he had confidence in Mr. Thompson.

Band Program

The program will include Mozart's Marriage of Figaro, Eric Coates' Knightsbridge March and a selection from "Manhattan" by Rodgers and Hart.

CBC SCORED

Morals Undermined —Thompson

OTTAWA (CP)—Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said in the Commons Friday that CBC radio satirist Max Ferguson is broadcasting skits that are "undermining our national morals."

While many other MPs loudly expressed displeasure with the question, Mr. Thompson asked what the government intends to do about programs "obviously harmful to the security and well-being of our nation."

Replied State Secretary J. W. Pickersgill, in effect—not a thing.

Mr. Pickersgill said that in any free society nothing is more undesirable than to have the government directing broadcasting, the press, or any other medium of public information.

"No one in this government has any such thought," he said.

Mr. Pickersgill, the minister who reports to Parliament on broadcasting, said the best way for Parliament to deal with broadcasting—"at least" the public side of it—is to ensure that the most able persons are appointed to the CBC board of directors and management.

Mr. Pickersgill said he was sure the management of the publicly-owned CBC would take Mr. Thompson's views into account.

The Social Credit leader was referring to two particular skits broadcast Wednesday on Mr. Ferguson's morning program.

One skit, Mr. Thompson said in the House on Wednesday, dealt with a meeting between President Kennedy and a top Canadian official in which the president kept urging that Canada take extra nuclear weapons.

The other skit was based on the anniversary of the "great fight at Stoney Creek of 1812 or 1813"—as Mr. Thompson described it—and had Prime Minister Pearson and U.S. Ambassador Walton Butterworth looking on.

After the exchange Friday with the minister, Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) suggested Mr. Pickersgill should listen to the program whenever he can to enjoy "its very good humor."

Seasonal Slash Hits Barbados Beaches

HOLETOWN, Barbados—The great summer sale has begun on this patch of royal real estate where the lords and ladies roost during the slushy season in the northlands. What if the crowns and coronets have fled to spiffier watering holes? Can the common people be far behind? Some 49 hotels are remaining open this summer, happy enough to collect a tariff that is 80 per cent of the winter impost. Even the airlines, which are not habitually given to outbursts of wholesale charity, are dangling a cut-rate excursion. From New York both Pan Am and BWIA will fetch you hither and yon for $229.

The seasonal slash applies even to such places as Sandy Lane, a splashy preserve preferred by Lord Victor Rothschild, Lord Kindersley, chairman of Rolls-Royce, and the Hon. Janet Kidd, Lord Beaverbrook's daughter. While these personages maintain their own digs on the property, there are also 50 rooms leasable to the peasants at $32 daily for two, breakfast and dinner included.

On behalf of those who are not escaping from housework, Paradise has half a dozen bungalows on the beachfront. Most have two bedrooms, and come with linens and crockery. You can have the key for $100 for two weeks. Maids are on call at $5 a week, cooks at $7 a week and nursemaids at $6. At that rate it becomes rather tempting to hire a staff and change one's residence for good and all.

The first tourists on Barbados were English who arrived aboard the Olive Blossom, an early cruise ship which landed at Holetown in 1625. They erected a cross and whittled on a tree: "James King of England and this Island." It has remained English ever since. Fifty years after the Olive Blossom's pioneer trip one Henry Whistler, in his "Journal of the West India Expedition," called Barbados "one of the richest spots of ground in the world and fully inhabited."

Among the early convalescents who came to Barbados was Lawrence Washington, accompanied by his brother, George. The yellow residence they occupied, now called The Washington House, still stands on Bay St. The Barbadians who live in it now look out on such signs of modern times as a Coke poster and a Bridge-town movie house, which, on the day I passed by, was playing Elvis.

While the Washington boys were among the first to find therapy in the sun and the sea at Barbados, the idea soon caught the fancy of the infirm of England and America. By the late 19th century physicians were prescribing it regularly, and it was known among them as the sanitarium of the West Indies. Since those days it has changed very little. Bread and cake tarts are still pulled by the donkeys, and the police in the port still wear the flat-brimmed boaters and the bell-bottomed trousers of Nelson's navy.

Low-slung boats still slip out of the Careenage in mid-city in the early morning hours and return in the afternoon with a deckload of flying fish. Pudding and sauce and sea urchins, called sea eggs here, are among the health-giving bon-bons of the island. Iced paw-paw with limes, guava juice, sour sop nectar and tamarind juice, all steaming with vitamins.

On the rooftop of the Hotel Caribbee, a new, open-air restaurant dispenses baked dolphin steak, grilled chubb fresh off the reef and swimming now in parsley butter; and fried turtle steak breadcrumbed and served with lime and hot pepper sauce. In extreme cases one might be revived with doses of sangaree, or a green swizzle, or a local explosive known as corn and oil—rum mixed with falernum. If a return to full vigah still eludes you; be of good cheer. A competent nursemaid costs less than $1 a day. Who can afford to stay healthy?

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

It was 6-to-5 and take your choice this week as to which news item caused the largest ripple in Victoria. First there was a picture of Cadborosaurus, a sea scoundrel reputedly seen by people who do not necessary dip their beaks in the juice.

Despite the evidence, there were disbelievers. Among them was Montague Roberts, this journal's salty water editor. Mr. Roberts, who takes his straight, scoffed aloud. "Harumph!" he said. "Couldn't be Caddy. Nothing moves in these waters without getting clearance from me. The navy, merchant ships, Caddy—nothing."

History has recorded that Admiral Roberts was conclusively correct. The Caddy shuttered off Mill Bay was only a flotsam of used tires cunningly attached to a wooden frame. The real Cadborosaurus won't show until Roberts is bloody well ready to push the button.

The second pebble in the pond was tossed by Ed Kostenuk, racing car proprietor. Speaking from Indianapolis a few days before the "500," Mr. Kostenuk expressed his opinion of hometown support for his City of Victoria Special.

Holding his grease-smudged nose with grease-marked fingers, he said, in effect, "It smells."

His pique concerned a city sponsorship-membership drive. The idea had been to sell tickets for $1 to help him acquire a few knick-knacks for his Watson-Offenhauser roadster. Things like a motor and wheels and tires.

In return, Kostenuk's buggy was to carry in bold letters the name "City of Victoria" before 500,000 people of Indianapolis. It seemed a fair exchange.

Top Cars Cost More Than Peanuts

Optimistic observers felt the drive would yield some $12,000. Victorians did not exactly fall over themselves to support the hometown boy. The drive fell short by exactly $11,500 . . . despite strong efforts by Bob Low and a small corps of Vancouver Island Track Racing Association officials.

At Indianapolis $500 goes a long way. If you're lucky you can use it to put air in the tires. The Offenhauser-powered J. C. Agajanian Special, steered into first place by Parnelli Jones, couldn't be purchased for $30,000. Ford Motor Co. reputedly sunk a pile (some say $2-million) into perfecting the rear-engine Lotus-Ford motors.

Mr. Kostenuk accepted the $500 (which almost covered the sum he had advanced for printing tickets, etc.) and said: "The car will still carry the City of Victoria banner. But never again. We made out alright, but what a Mickey Mouse way to come here."

Thousands of Victorians immediately cried out as if they had been stuck in the seat by a sharp pin. Relatively few who demanded Kostenuk's pelt were seen waving $1 membership tickets.

Publicity Worth More Than $500

Bob Low had something to say: "Victorians won't back anything but a champion. Eddie's a fine driver, the first Canadian to get a car in the 500. Victoria got a lot more than $500 worth of publicity."

"Here's a guy who went around Indy at 146 miles an hour only a year after he almost lost his sight when a bird crashed into his goggles. I know what Kostenuk went through in the time trials last week. Every time he hit the third turn, he had to be looking for another bird. One more thing: Kostenuk kept his word to Victoria. The name stayed. He got $6,500 from U.S. Equipment but all he did was put their name on the hood. He lost a rich sponsor just because he wouldn't take 'City of Victoria' off the sides."

Adversity of another kind struck Kostenuk Thursday. His car, having qualified at better than 148 mph under rookie John Rutherford, of Texas, was forced into the pits on the 45th lap. An oil leak, the story said.

On the blower from Indianapolis Friday, Kostenuk didn't sound like a man looking for a tall bridge.

"Rutherford wasn't ready to come in," he said. "He was running 24th and gaining steadily. But he saw smoke coming out of the transmission?"

Going on Circuit As Driver Only

So you're $30,000 in the glue? "Not quite," Kostenuk said. "We will get about $7,000. Some for qualifying, some for laps completed. The rest is our entry fee, $1,000."

"The car? I'm going to sell it. I've got an offer. Then I'm going on the circuit. Strictly as a driver. I start in two weeks at Milwaukee."

If everything had gone alright where could you have finished? "In the first 10," he said flatly. "Even 10th would have been worth $30,000."

Was he still gritting his teeth over the extreme frugality of Victorians?

"No," he said. "I didn't mean it the way it sounded. I really appreciate the work and support I received. The others? Well, it's their money. If I'm sore at anything it was not being able to finish."

For the kind of money they spread at Indianapolis (winner Jones picked off $148,581), couldn't you patch that oil leak with chewing tobacco? Or gum?

"Not this one," Kostenuk said. "We would have had to take out the engine to get at the transmission."

"You know what went? A $2 bearing."

Flash Elorde Stops Japanese Challenger

MANILA (AP)—Flash Elorde, of the Philippines, Orient light-weight champion for five years, knocked out Japan's Tsunetomi Miyamoto in the ninth round last night for his tenth successful defence of his title.

Elorde caught Miyamoto with a crushing right hook to the head at close range. The Japanese got up at the count of six, but the referee stopped the fight, ruling that Miyamoto was in no condition to continue.

JONES GETS ONE-PUNCH DECISION

Sachs Also Has Trouble With Parnelli's Fist

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Parnelli Jones holds the winner's share of a record 500-mile race purse and a one-punch decision over contender Eddie Sachs.

Jones, 29, from Torrance, Calif., picked up $148,581 at the annual victory dinner Friday night. He and Sachs, 36, of Detroit had tangled earlier with an exchange of "liar" epithets in a controversy over oil spilled during the race Thursday.

There was a lot of talk about oil left on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway asphalt, with Sachs contending that oil from Jones' car caused him to spin out of the race. But no formal protest was filed.

The total purse of $493,530.60 and the first-place payoff to Jones and car owner J. C. Agajanian set records. Drivers work on percentage, usually 40 per cent.

The spilled oil controversy had been going on for nearly 24 hours when Jones and Sachs started talking near a motel bar and Sachs brought it up again. Witnesses said each man called the other a liar and Jones said: "You call me a liar again and

SHOTS? . . . LYLE SAYS HE HAS THEM ALL

Confidently waving collection of clubs, Lyle Crawford indicates he believes he has all the shots he needs to beat Victoria's Bill Wakeham in matchplay test Sunday at Uplands. Crawford, Vancouver Open champion, tangles with Wakeham, Times Island Open king, over 18-hole route at 2 p.m.

VANCOUVER OPEN KING . . .

. . . PLAYS WAKEHAM SUNDAY

Crawford Likes Uplands

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Lyle Crawford took his first look at Uplands golf course Friday and ventured only one prediction: "It's going to be a dandy match."

The 30-year-old Vancouver Lanagara professional liked what he saw.

Uplands is the site of Sunday's 18-hole challenge game for the Times-Province B.C. match play trophy.

Crawford, the Vancouver City Open champion, is one participant; Bill Wakeham, 22-year-old Gorge Vale amateur who won the Times Island Open title early in May, is the other.

They tee off at 2 p.m. Crawford and assistant pro Joe Jeroski raced around the course before rushing off to catch the afternoon ferry back to the mainland on Friday.

REAL GOLF TEST Despite the rushing, it seemed time enough for Crawford to make a few observations.

About the greens: "Much heavier than what I'm used to. They've got a lot of grass on them for this time of the year."

About the route, in general: "Woosh, that front nine is a real golf test. As for that back nine, the guy who gets his driver working is the one who is going to win a few holes there."

Crawford's observation about the front nine is old hat. That's the toughest alley on the 6,215-yard, par 35-35-70 course, that is in exceptional condition.

BILL MAY NEED REST But the man, obviously, has a keen eye.

Crawford didn't keep track of his medal score Friday. He hit two or three shots at various times.

He was tagging his irons crisply, his woods long and straight. There were indications that Wakeham will have to be at his long-hitting best to keep up to Crawford. On the par-four 13th, playing about 280 yards, Crawford's drive was pin-high. He chipped in easily for an easy birdie.

IMPRESSIVE RECORD Crawford doesn't take a back seat to anyone when it comes to posting his credentials. He twice won the B.C. amateur title (1954 and 1955) and was the kingpin of the 1955 Willingdon Cup team that set a team record.

As well, he reached the Canadian Amateur final that year, losing to Kitchener's Moe Norman when the colorful clown from the east dropped a 12-foot birdie putt on the 39th hole.

Wakeham, defending the B.C. Amateur title this year, seems ready for what shapes up as a "grudge" match. Bill carded a four-under-par 68 in a practice round at Gorge Vale Thursday.

HITTING BALL STRAIGHT "I'm hitting the ball good, and straight," he suggested in a self-appraisal Friday.

It shapes up as an interesting bout. The real winners, of course, will be junior golf development and the Y.M.W.C.A. building fund. Net proceeds from the match will be shared by the two.

Ticket sales indicate a good crowd. In anticipation, a squad of Uplands members will marshal the match and a commissioner has been assigned to help park cars.

Referee for the match will be Monk Morgan, vice-chairman of the Victoria and District Golf Committee.

Mosport Crash Fatal; Indy Winner Pulls Out

ORONO, Ont. (CP)—A fatal accident in Friday's time trials and the withdrawal of Indianapolis 500 winner Parnelli Jones provided an inauspicious prelude to today's 200-mile international sports car race at nearby Mosport, Canada's premier auto racing attraction.

Allister Smith of Hamilton, who flipped his D-type Jaguar in a tight turn on the 2.45-mile Mosport track, died from head injuries early today at hospital in Toronto, 40 miles southwest of here.

His injuries had been diagnosed as brain damage and a skull fracture.

Musial's Pop Trips Giants; Twins Beaten

(By UP-International)

Stan Musial, a man who has done everything, can now claim he also has seen everything after winning a game with a pop-up that was declared out because of the infield fly rule.

If that beats you, don't worry too much about it because it also beat the San Francisco Giants last night and gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 6-5 victory that boosted them within two games of the National League lead.

Here's how it happened: Musial came to bat with the bases full in the ninth inning, nobody out and the score tied at 5-5.

He popped the ball up a few feet behind first base and the umpires immediately called the infield fly rule. That means it's an automatic out but the Giants' infield, somewhat confused, allowed the ball to drop and Curt Flood raced home from third base with the winning run.

LARSEN LOSES

Musial was called out—but credited with a run batted in because under the infield fly rule runners may advance at their own risk.

Don Larsen, first of three Giant pitchers employed in the ninth, was charged with his third loss in as many decisions while Bob Gibson picked up his third victory in relief. Bill White tied the score at 5-5 with a two-run homer in the seventh inning.

Cincinnati Reds defeated Los Angeles Dodgers, 7-4; Pittsburgh Pirates blanked New York Mets, 2-0; Houston Colts ended a five-game losing streak with a 3-2 win over Milwaukee Braves, and Chicago Cubs nipped Philadelphia Phillies, 2-1, in other NL action.

In the American League, New York Yankees climbed into a first-place tie by whitewashing Cleveland Indians, 4-0; Los Angeles Angels beat the Baltimore Orioles, 7-4; Detroit Tigers snapped Minnesota Twins' 10-game winning streak, 3-1, and Kansas City A's walked off Washington Senators, 9-3.

Whitey Ford set down the Indians on three hits for his sixth victory as Tom Tresh and Elston Howard hit two-run homers for the Yankees. Both blows came off Jim (Mudcat) Grant, who lost his fifth game against three victories.

PAPPAS BEATEN

Ex-reliever Dan Osinski scored his third victory of the season and his first as a starter in the Angels' win over the Orioles, who dropped their third in a row. Rookie Charley Dees led off the fifth inning with a homer off loser Milt Pappas and the Angels clinched the outcome with two more runs in the same frame for a 7-2 lead. The loss was Pappas' first after four wins. Jim Bunning ended the major leagues' longest winning streak by limiting the Twins to seven hits as he recorded his third triumph for Tigers. Gus Triandos' single with the bases full was the key blow off loser Jim Perry during a three-run rally by the Tigers in the fourth. Earl Battey's 10th homer in the ninth deprived Burning of a shutout.

Bunny Fails To Pace Pete To New Mark

LOS ANGELES (AP)—World record-holder Peter Snell of New Zealand, though inadvertently paced by a live rabbit, failed Friday night in his attempt to break his own world record in the half-mile. Snell breezed ahead of an all-star pack of athletes in one minute 48 seconds in the Southern Pacific Association Amateur Athletic Union track and field championships.

Snell, who showed the effects of 3:54.9 mile last week at Modesto, was far short of his world mark of 1:45.1.

As the gun sounded for the seven-man race, a rabbit appeared on the track and immediately took a 25-yard lead on Snell. The crowd, which usually cheers during such a race, started laughing uproariously.

The rabbit stayed in the lead the first lap, and then stopped but finished the half-mile—last.

IN SPILLED OIL ARGUMENT

Sachs Also Has Trouble With Parnelli's Fist

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Parnelli Jones holds the winner's share of a record 500-mile race purse and a one-punch decision over contender Eddie Sachs.

Jones, 29, from Torrance, Calif., picked up $148,581 at the annual victory dinner Friday night. He and Sachs, 36, of Detroit had tangled earlier with an exchange of "liar" epithets in a controversy over oil spilled during the race Thursday.

There was a lot of talk about oil left on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway asphalt, with Sachs contending that oil from Jones' car caused him to spin out of the race. But no formal protest was filed.

The total purse of $493,530.60 and the first-place payoff to Jones and car owner J. C. Agajanian set records. Drivers work on percentage, usually 40 per cent.

The spilled oil controversy had been going on for nearly 24 hours when Jones and Sachs started talking near a motel bar and Sachs brought it up again. Witnesses said each man called the other a liar and Jones said: "You call me a liar again and I'll bust you right in the mouth."

Sachs replied: "All right, you're a liar."

Jones landed one punch to the face and the two wrestled to the floor before spectators separated them. Sachs' mouth was puffed up as he arose.

Sachs had been fined $100 earlier Friday for violating a rule that requires a driver to go into the pits for inspection after his car has touched another object.

Sachs' Bryant Special spun into the infield and brushed a guard rail on the 176th lap, but he stayed in the race until he hit the wall on the 181st lap, only 19 laps short of finishing.

Sachs and others figured Jones should have been flagged off the track because of the oil leak. It was a decision for chief steward Harland Fenter, who said the leakage was slight and stopped during the last few laps. He said also there were other cars with small oil leaks.

Sachs was among the top 10 during much of the race but ended up 17th in the 33-car field.

Sachs and Roger McCluskey of Tucson, Ariz., who spun into the wall on the next-to-last lap while running in third place, did not attend the victory dinner. McCluskey said earlier: "I slid in Parnelli Jones' oil."

Other drivers took a different view.

Rodger Ward of Indianapolis, two-time winner who finished fourth and who would have gained several thousand dollars if the leader had been flagged, said Fenter "did the only thing he could do."

"When a guy worked that hard and was that close to the finish, I don't see how you could justify the black flag."

Jim Clark of Scotland, who finished second to Jones' Agajanian special in a Lotus-Ford, won $55,238 and honors as rookie-of-the-year and outstanding foreign driver in the race. Each citation carried $500 prize money.

The over-all purse broke last year's record of $426,152.37.

A. J. Foyt of Houston, Tex., who placed third in a Sheraton-Thompson Special, won $22,613.61.

Nicklaus Tips Times' Readers

Jack Nicklaus, the beefy young better who is threatening to reduce professional golf's "Big Three" into a one-man dynasty, will soon be unveiling his formula for success to readers of The Daily Times.

The 23-year-old Ohio powerhouse who wrecked all records for rookies on golf's "gold trail" last year, is author of a new illustrated instructional series that starts Tuesday in the Times.

Although he calls it "Tip a-Day," Nicklaus is submitting three articles each week. In his freshman season, Nicklaus joined long-established stars Arnold Palmer and Gary Player in dominating the U.S. Open title among his triumphs and was second behind Palmer in official money-winnings, although the "unofficial" $50,000 he collected for blasting Palmer and Player in the "World Series of Golf" would have easily boosted him into the top spot.

JACK NICKLAUS

Master of the power game who can blast 300-yard drives, Nicklaus is also noted for his delicate touch, sound theories and near-flawless tactics. Chunky Jack believes mainly in control. He doesn't try to make every divot a big hit and has designed his series to help both duffers and low-handicap aces trim strokes off their scores.

Proof that Nicklaus, a fairway whiz since he was 12, has a sound game can be gleaned from figures released this week by the U.S. Professional Golfers' Association.

He has shown no sign of the "sophomore jinx" while winning the Masters title and forging far ahead in earnings.

Nicklaus has won $37,615 in 13 tournaments this year and has only to win about another $24,000 in the next six months to break Palmer's record earnings of $81,448 for one season.

Tony Lama is second with $44,296, followed by Player ($39,065) and Palmer ($31,545).

Canada Boosts Planting

By ARCH MACKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has the capacity to grow a lot more of its own sugar—but it hasn't paid off in the past.

In fact, growers of sugar beets in Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba and Alberta usually have been recipients of federal aid.

In 1959, Ontario acreage plummeted because a Wallaceburg refinery was closed. It fell to about 14,000 acres from 33,000.

Agriculture department officials said Friday that Canada supplies about 15 per cent of its sugar consumption and that—as Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp indicated in the House of Commons this week—farmers are planting more sugar beets this year.

That results from high world prices for cane sugar, which set the pattern. For the second year in a row sugar demand has exceeded output internationally and this lies behind the upward surge of prices, now faltering.

Alberta, using irrigated land in the southern part of the province, is the largest grower.

TO INCREASE ACREAGE

Acreage this year may be 45,000 compared with just over 40,000 harvested last year. In Manitoba, 1952 was a bad year and the crop was harvested on 22,000 acres, although there may be 32,000 acres involved this season.

Ontario may harvest about 18,000 acres against 13,000 in 1962 and Quebec about 10,000—or just about the same.

Firm contracts with refiners are signed by sugar beet growers as early as January, well before the crop is planted. World conditions shape the price structure.

The world trade is a complicated operation. Only about one-third of the sugar produced gets into the international trade. About half that is governed by quotas and agreements.

Prices can come downward sharply as well as rise. Canadian growers are cushioned against this by an arrangement pinned to world raw sugar price levels. Federal payments are made if the average price received in Canada for home-grown beet sugar is below the international level.

No such payment is anticipated this year, because of high prices.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Labor Peace Nearer In Steel

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Hopes for labor peace in the United States steel industry sprouted higher this week.

And it was a week in which the sugar price bubble apparently collapsed.

It also was the anniversary of the Black Monday stock crash of 1962 but Wall Street ignored the occasion.

Optimism about the possibility of a steel labor settlement arose against a background of quiet talks between representatives of the United Steelworkers and producing companies.

Steel magazine said negotiators are on the verge of a settlement that would give the union an extended vacation plan in a one-year extension of the contract.

Iron Age Magazine reported a "strong possibility" of a settlement.

An agreement would avoid reopening the contract for wage negotiations. If there is a reopening the union would be free to strike 90 days later.

REDUCE PRICES

Leading sugar refiners began reducing prices for the first time since the upward spiral started in October, 1961. Their action came after an official of the agriculture department predicted a bursting of a speculative bubble in sugar prices.

The increases had caused doubts in the price of some foods using sugar and in retail prices.

The stock market took the anniversary of the 1962 crash—worst since 1929—in stride. It continued to remain in a consolidation phase after having more than made up its losses in the last year.

The economy continued to show signs of improvement.

In the building field, contracts for future construction climbed to $3,882,605,000 in April from $3,890,460,000 a year earlier for a gain of three per cent.

LEVEL A RECORD

The cost of living in April remained at the record level of March. A decline in the price of meat, poultry and fish was offset by an advance in the cost of fruits and vegetables. The labor department said indications are that the consumer price index will remain at current level for several months.

As a result of the advance in the index from Jan. 15 to April 15, about 1,000,000 workers in the automobile industry will get a one-cent hourly wage increase next week.

TWO VICTORIANS were recently presented with certificates for completion of five years of Society of Industrial Cost Accountants courses. Daryl Campbell, left, Vancouver, president of the B.C. branch of the society, is shown giving the certificates to R. K. Simpson, 3345 Woodworth, and J. W. Wilson, 3915 Braefoot. At the same meeting, J. M. Creasey was elected chairman of the Victoria chapter of the society.

Changing Trend Grows In Housing Demands

By GORDON BELL

Times Business Editor

"Who's going to live in all these new apartments in Victoria, the high-rises and the garden courts, and all the other new housing that is being built?"

That's a question asked frequently around town these days and, while the multiplication of Gordon Bell housing locally seems to be running far ahead of demand, there's no doubt that the people who are putting up money to finance them expect demand to catch up eventually.

The demand will come not so much from growth in population of Victoria—although that is a factor—as from a changing type of population and a changing trend in housing requirements.

Some research on Canadian housing published in the latest issue of the Bank of Montreal's Business Review points out that apartments are proving popular, because of space and cost, to young families with no children or one child, to older couples whose children are no longer living at home; and to non-family households.

The significant fact brought out by the bank's study is that the number of people in these groups has been growing rapidly, with non-family households alone increasing at an average rate of 24,000 a year, double the rate of increase 10 years ago.

In Victoria, of course, the demand for apartments by older couples and non-family households is bound to be reinforced by this area's growing popularity as a retirement centre.

Most real estate experts will agree that right now—taking into consideration apartments newly-built and solidly-proved for the Victoria area—there is an overbuilt situation.

Vacancy rates are definitely moving up in Victoria and they will probably continue to climb for the next year or so until there is a levelling-off in construction.

All this is anticipating the increasing change in the population "mix" outlined in the bank study. And this, of course, is the job of the men who control the huge amounts of mortgage money which has been flooding into Victoria to finance all the new projects.

Plans to build even more high-rises and garden courts in this area may seem far-fetched to the "man-in-the-street" when space in completed buildings is going begging.

But it's a sure bet that the construction will come to a halt only when the money runs out—when the decision-makers in Toronto, Paris, New York and Geneva and other places where there are large amounts of capital, come to the conclusion that there has been enough apartment building in Victoria to satisfy demand for about 10 years ahead.

So far there has been only the broadest hint as to where Shawinigan Industries Ltd. plans to invest its liquid assets, estimated at around $27.1 million.

Shawinigan president John A. Fuller this week told a meeting of Montreal investment men that while he could tell them nothing specific, the company planned to enter "fields wherein Shawinigan's skills and technical talents can contribute to management growth."

The company would try to get a few relatively important holdings rather than many small interests, he said.

"We do not intend to operate as a holding company. We are looking for companies in which we can invest and take an active part in management," he added.

Mr. Fuller said he felt the company had an attractive future and that it retained the experienced management which built up Shawinigan Water and Power to the country's largest privately-owned electricity firm.

In addition to its liquid holdings, Shawinigan has a one-third interest in Shawinigan Chemicals Ltd., $800,000 invested in Shawinigan Engineering and $600,000 in Shawinigan Buildings.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Quiet, Selective Buying Featured

By GARY COOPER

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets crept slowly ahead on quiet and selective buying this week.

A few major industrial advanced rather sharply, pulling the Toronto index to another record high on Friday.

With financial news almost nonexistent, investors had little to go on. Nor did Wall Street provide any leadership.

At Toronto, the industrial index—a compilation of 20 selected issues—advanced 2.21 on the week to a new all-time high of 417.96. A rise of 2.67 Friday wiped out a fractional deficit created in earlier sessions.

Although daily volume, hovering around the 3,000,000-share mark, were unimpressive, a few major industrials stood out.

Index stocks such as Distillers Seagrams advancing two points and CPR and Canadian Celanese rising healthy fractions were influential in the climb into record territory.

Refining oils and pipelines, closing on a mixed note, were among the more active issues.

All major banks suffered losses, some falling a point or more.

Foods tended to ease slightly, taking a lead from sugar refineries. One exception in the group was Loblaw, which recorded a new 1963 top on moderate turnover.

UTILITIES ACTIVE

Certain of the utilities group featured fairly heavy turnover, including CPR and Consumers', both advancing fractionally on the week. Most others, such as B.C. Power and Shawinigan, remained steady.

Papers did fairly well on the basis of a report that the industry showed an increase in April of 4.8 per cent in the production of ground pulp wood over the previous month.

Among these, Great Lakes Paper was active and moved to a new high for the year.

Most motors were on the upswing with Chrysler and General Motors both advancing to new highs on modest trading.

Steels and construction issues were mostly lower and dull. Base metals investors steered away from speculations again this week and senior issues took over the spotlight. The big producers were generally stronger.

There was little activity or price fluctuation among western oils. Even the more active penny issues such as Quonto and Noranda showed only modest change in price.

Convicted By Crowd

MOSCOW (AP)—A crowd of 2,000 Muscovites sentenced three youths to exile from the capital for speculative dealings with foreign visitors, Pravda reported Friday. The Communist party newspaper says the three young Russians were placed on trial before the crowd Thursday in a square in Moscow's Luzhniki Sports Park in what is known here as public court.

Chemical fertilizing pellets rained down on forest area near Lake Cowichan in experiment to make trees mature faster. The project was launched this week by Pacific Log-

EXPERIMENT IN TREE GROWTH

Forest Fed by Aircraft

By HUMPHRY DAVY

LAKE COWICHAN—A short distance from this growing logging community an experiment is underway in spurring the growth of forest trees.

An aircraft this week has started to drop a fertilizer, "urea," over wooded areas near Cowichan Lake.

The fertilizer is in the form of tiny pellets containing organic nitrogen and other chemicals beneficial to plants.

The project calls for dropping 55 tons of fertilizer on a total of 450 acres of timber which range between 15 to 50 years of age.

The chemical fertilization will speed the growth of trees to loggable size more rapidly than the present average of 90 years. William Sloan, president of Pacific Logging Co., which has launched the project, said the main object of the experiment is to find out if it is economical to fertilize trees from the air. "We know the fertilizer will benefit the trees," he said. "But whether it is economical is another matter."

The project is being conducted in co-operation with Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Trail, which has supplied the chemical pellets free of charge. Ian McEae of Victoria, forester for the logging company, is in charge of the project. The chemical pellets are loaded aboard a 1941 Stearman piloted by Barry Marsden of Langley, at the Paldi airstrip. He drops the pellets over a designated wooded area marked out with balloons.

It's a tricky business. He flies just over the tree tops and faces risks such as downdrafts and air pockets.

BOMB-BANNER FINED FOR MARKING STREET

NANAIMO (CP)—Robert Clerihue pleaded guilty Friday to a charge of defacing sidewalks by stencilling signs saying "No Nuclear Arms for Canada" and "Ban the A-Bomb" on Commercial Street shortly before the April 8 federal election.

"Banning the bomb may be something to be desired, and a great many people may feel the same way, but it doesn't merit defacing city streets," said Magistrate Lionel Beaver-Potts.

Clerihue said he didn't know there was a bylaw against marking the streets. He was fined $10 and $4 costs.

DUNCAN—City works crews will be able to straighten a sharp curve on Hospital Hill in the near future, as soon as the project is agreed to by the minister of health.

At a meeting this week, members of the Cowichan Hospital Board passed a motion to swap strips of land opposite each other at the hospital grounds on Jubilee Street for the project. Previously with the associated staff and now members of the active hospital staff are Dr. F. Ho and Dr. Harry Lewis. This brings the present medical personnel on the active staff to 17, one associate, and seven on the consulting staff.

NANAIMO (CP)—Max H. Setlar pleaded guilty in court here to a charge of possessing an unlicensed revolver and another of carrying it outside a dwelling house. He was fined $25.

NANAIMO (CP)—Comox MLA Dan Campbell has promised a citizens' committee that something is being done to make the Jingle Pot Road crossing in suburban Wellington safe for children. A youngster was killed at the crossing earlier this year.

PORT ALBERNI (CP)—A body found in the harbor here was identified Friday as that of Joseph Patrick Vachon, 43, a former resident of Quebec province.

Police said he had been here for several months. He disappeared last month.

Cause of death was not immediately determined.

Paintings and sketches of historical landmarks were highlighted of recent art exhibit held in Sanscha Hall, Sidney.

A record crowd of over 700 attended the 10th annual show sponsored by the Saanich Peninsula Art Centre. There were 400 paintings in all and several handicrafts on display, representing the work of 140 artists and craftsmen.

The Prairie Inn at Saanichton, St. Stephen's and Holy Trinity churches, the Rithet barn at Royal Oak and the Log Cabin museum at Saanichton were among the subjects selected for the historic sketches.

Guest artist was Michael Morris who exhibited a large collection of oil paintings.

Object of the show was to assist young people in art. Several sections were devoted to children's work and exhibits were chosen from the schools throughout the Peninsula.

Although the majority of the exhibits were works of amateurs there was a representative collection of professionals.

Cast Aluminum Sockeye Salmon Grace New Alexandra Bridge

By HUMPHREY DAVY
Four large sculptured salmon cast in aluminum, the work of a Victoria artist, were mounted Friday on the portals of the newly completed Alexandra Bridge on the Fraser River, 25 miles north of Hope.

The sculptured pieces were conceived and carried out in Victoria over a period of three years. The fish are the work of Mrs. J. A. (Betts) Burchett, 2660 Arbutus Road.

The casting was done by Victoria Foundries Ltd., under the direction of Ray Smith, manager. Commissioned by A. B. Sanderson, consulting engineer, to do a decorative motif for the bridge, Mrs. Burchett worked long hours to sculpt a sockeye salmon—the fish which is truly representative of the Fraser River.

The result is a superb work of art. She not only caught in clay the spirit of the courageous male salmon fighting its way up river, but conveyed an impression of motion and action in her work.

STUDIED SUBJECT
"I had to study the salmon before making the fish," she said. "This entailed studying pickled salmon or fresh whole salmon bought at the fish-mongers."

Mrs. Burchett is a talented artist in more than one way. She sculpts animals, especially dogs, which have won her recognition in the United States.

She is also a skillful potter, an art she learned by herself several years ago.

"There were no instructors in Victoria then," she said. "So I had to rely on books."

Mrs. Burchett lives in a Tudor-style home which she and her husband designed and built.

Apart from sculpting and potting, she finds time to look after a large garden, breed Dachshunds (four of her dogs are champions) and to participate in dog obedience trials.

FIRST FOR FIRM
Mr. Smith, who supervised the casting of the fish, said it was the first time his firm had ever undertaken such a job.

"We undertook to do the casting because it was a challenge," he said. "I must admit I didn't sleep for many nights, but now I'm satisfied that we can do it."

He said the casting involved many technical problems which took time to solve.

Others who worked on the technical aspects of the job were Bernard Baldwin, Stan Smith and Don Irish. Cliff Irvine was pattern maker.

Works Department Surveying Growth Of Government
A special survey is under way on the growth of B.C. government in the next decade.

All provincial departments have been requested to fill out a questionnaire.

It asks how much space they are using now, how many employees they have and what they anticipate in the next 10 years.

It was sent around by the public works department to guide planning for future expansion.

The department is trying to establish a ratio of growth to gauge its building program.

Some departments are already seriously cramped in space and have been crying for new offices.

One plea has just been recognized—the need for a new museum and archives.

Esquimalt Golden Age Club will go on a bus tour June 12. Members are requested to meet at 10 a.m. in front of Esquimalt Municipal Hall or at 10:15 a.m. at the B.C. Hydro Building.

Souvenir histories of Victoria's first century are still available at City Hall for $1.

The 100-odd page official history, compiled for last year's centennial celebrations traces the important events and institutions of Victorians.

B.C.'s Farm Income Reaches Record High
Farm cash income of B.C. farmers in 1962 reached a record high of $151.1 million—an increase of $13.9 million over last year, agriculture minister Frank Richter announced Friday.

"This is a continuation of the strong upward trend which began in 1956," Mr. Richter said.

Most important commodities produced by B.C. farmers in 1962 were:

Dairy products $36.1 million; cattle and calves $30.4 million; fruit $19.1 million; eggs $15.3 million; poultry $12.3 million; vegetables and potatoes $10.2 million; and wheat $3.7 million.

The outlook for 1963 is bright in all phases of B.C. agriculture, the minister said.

He announced that his department will carry out a survey of the B.C. vegetable industry during June.

"The province is growing rapidly and our need for fresh vegetables is increasing daily. We would therefore like to have an accurate picture of what is being grown in B.C. and where."

Special survey forms will be sent to all commercial growers next week.

Low Sugar Price Being Held By Independents
Victoria's sugar price war stood pat today, despite reports that it couldn't carry on much longer.

Independent retailers are still selling a 10-pound bag of sugar for $1.49, and major chain stores are still selling it for $1.39.

Spokesmen for the big chain stores continue to consider their cut-rate competition as being of only short duration.

And independent operators seem firm about keeping the price at the present level.

Cut-rate price is set at the local level, and cuts into dealer profit.

Predicted rises in the price of candy and other high-sugar content foods are expected soon, say wholesalers, due to the rise in price of sugar on the world market.

SYMBOL OF THE FRASER RIVER, the sculptured aluminum salmon, executed by a Victoria artist, were installed Friday on the portals of Alexandra Bridge near Hope. The models are the work of Mrs. J. A. (Betts) Burchett, shown in picture.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, JUNE 1, 1963—PAGE 19

It is time to praise famous men once more, and for our subject we will take a former editor of a Vancouver daily who strides through my unpruned garden of memories like a giant among Hottentots.

Since he's still very much alive and kicking, I'd best identify him only as Whirling Bob.

To those of us who worked on that sheet when we and the world were younger—including a large and breezy reporter by the name of Keate—Whirling Bob's name still radiates a peculiar magic.

He was brilliant, moody and temperamental. Where news was concerned, his hunches were nothing less than eerie. His temper reached flash-point at one degree above body heat, and he believed the least of his staff should be able to master any gambit up to and including the theory of relativity in no more than three weeks.

We loved him. We hated him. We adored him when he ceremoniously donned his tie before calling the managing director on his intercom; we cheered him as he tackled the top brass for a raise in our miserable pay.

Whirling Bob broke our hearts and saved our bacon, and hammered us into newsmen.

The name we knew him by at a safe distance—came from one of his minor foibles.

His office was a railed enclosure which we called the bullpen. Let something big break close to deadline, say a bank holdup or a double murder, and Whirling Bob would go into his routine.

His swivel chair would commence to twirl; slowly at first, then as newsmen tension mounted, at an ever brisker pace.

By the time the story was in the bag, Whirling Bob would be spinning like a kid on a piano stool.

Under pressure, he would also eat copy paper, the stuff we bang out the news on. I don't mean he chewed it. He would grope vaguely with one large hand for the stack beside his typewriter, gather up a wad, and set to on it after the fashion of a rabbit with a carrot.

At such times it was his habit to rear up from his hard-used chair and march out to the newsroom, his paper lunch still in his fist.

Once when I was a green junior, I snatched an interview with an over-merry logger who had jumped off Lion's Gate Bridge 'yooast for the fun of it.'

To have deadline shadowing me was nerve-shaking; to know a front page spot was being held for the story, plumb demoralizing. But what properly shattered me was to hear behind me and close above, the sound of Whirling Bob's jaws working on a twist of copy paper.

I spelled three words wrong in a row, then my wits froze solid. But the expected tempest didn't break.

"Take it easy," said Whirling Bob. "Relax." And with a pat to my shoulder, steadily munching, "You've got plenty of time... Four minutes."

Because of such episodes—flashes of kindness when we looked for the roof to tumble in on us—we loved him even more than we hated him.

He went to bat for us whether we were right or wrong.

He rescued us when we got bogged beyond-our-own-powers of extrication in some piece of youthful folly, giving us the devil afterward, of course.

What he asked of us, and all he asked, was that we help him get out a good daily.

Today, Whirling Bob is a writer-editor turning out think-pieces read by millions, each a masterpiece of its kind. I'm told his office rug is the sort you sink ankle-deep in, and that his desk covers a quarter-acre.

But he still twirls in his chair, I'll bet, and when the going gets rough, reaches for a snack of newspaper.

Ask The Times
Q. At what rate is Canada's population growing? T.D.

A. During the last 10 years, Canada's population increased 30 per cent from 14,608,429 to 18,328,247.

Q. Regarding the CPR boat, the Islander, which sank at the turn of the century—is some of the treasure on it yet to be recovered? R.T.P.

A. When the Islander hit an iceberg in the Lynn Canal near Juneau, Alaska, Aug. 15, 1901, it was said $200,000 in gold was aboard. However, only $20,000 has been recovered as most of the gold was believed to have been scattered by an explosion before the ship went under.

Red Shield Drive Short
The Salvation Army fund drive in Victoria has reached $21,000 or 38 per cent of its $55,000 objective, general fund chairman Courtney Haddock reported today.

"It is running slower this year than last," he said. "Returns from the areas already canvassed have been most encouraging, but a great deal of canvassing remains to be done."

The campaign will continue until June 16 to permit a complete canvass of areas not covered so far.

Mr. Haddock said a good deal of the money collected this year will go to the Army's Harbor Light Corps operating from the new building at 516 Yates.

"Almost everyone is aware of the vitally important work being done by the Salvation Army in our community," Mr. Haddock said.

BOATERS IGNORE ROYAL OWNERSHIP
Don't look now, Princess Margaret, there are footprints on your island.

While there are delicate negotiations in the hierarchy of protocol about how to get back the island B.C. gave to the princess and make it into a park, the public is flocking there anyway every weekend.

"The beach is really crowded—you should see all the boats out there on a Sunday. It's fantastic," said a parks-official.

Technically Princess Margaret Island (nee Portland Island) is owned by Her Royal Highness.

But in fact it's being used as an unofficial marine park right now.

Viscount Amory, the U.K. high commissioner to Canada, said here Friday that it was a difficult situation but indicated some negotiations were underway.

At a recent press conference Premier Bennett refused to enlighten reporters on the situation.

"I never comment on royalty," he said. The parks branch hopes eventually that the island can be developed as a provincial recreation project, but there are no plans drawn up at present.

No money has been set aside for the project, either.

The parks branch has recently been concentrating on a number of other Gulf Island projects, including South Pender, Gabriola, Montague Harbor and Bedwell Bay.

Convention Centre Meeting on Monday
Proposals for the establishment of a convention centre in Victoria will be discussed Monday by a special committee set up by Victoria Chamber of Commerce retail merchants group.

The committee will meet in the Chamber board room at 10 a.m. under the chairmanship of Mrs. Irene Warren.

Later it will report to the chamber directors.

Police Had No Eye For Style
A prisoner didn't think much of the clothes police picked for him to wear in court this morning and he appeared without them.

Clinging to his dignity and a dressing gown, he told Magistrate J. A. Byers: "The clothes are not necessarily the ones I would have chosen."

He was wearing a dressing gown when arrested but police brought his clothes to the station.

"Have you not got any clothes?" asked the magistrate when he entered the dock this morning.

"I have."

"Why don't you wear them?"

NOT HIS CHOICE
"The clothes are not necessarily the ones I would have chosen," replied the accused.

Magistrate Byers ordered him remanded until Monday and to appear then properly dressed.

He asked for bail but Magistrate Byers wouldn't even consider it.

"I can't hear you in your present state of undress."

The man was the only person to appear in court today. An official estimated it cost the city at least $100 for a magistrate, a prosecutor, two police guards and a stenographer to hear the case.

Builder Blames B.C. Estimators
Figures on Schools Found 'Unrealistic'

Blame for the disparity in school building estimates and contractors' bids—nearly $100,000 on two jobs this week—was laid squarely on the education department today.

A Victoria contractor, whose firm has engaged in bidding on school addition contracts, declined to be named but backed up unofficial reports that someone in the department is setting unrealistically low estimates that contractors can't hope to meet.

He blamed the education department's school building branch.

He said neither the design architect nor the school board are to blame for the great gulf between estimate and bids.

LITTLE CONTROL
The board has little control over building expenditures because the provincial government provides much of the capital cost, guarantees school board borrowing, and must approve construction plans.

Comment arose as a result of Victoria school board opening tenders this week, in which low bids were $95,000 greater than specification estimates for two additions.

The amount is the difference between two low tenders opened by Greater Victoria School Board this week and the amount authorized by referendum to cover additions to Monterey and McKenzie Avenue Schools.

"The architect feels he can bring down the figures" building committee chairman George Curran said.

Architect R. W. Siddall meets with him and the building superintendent Monday to pare the specifications.

The referendum was passed nearly two years ago, but even increased building costs since then would not fully account for the high bids, Mr. Curran said.

DOORS EXPENSIVE
He said one reason for a higher estimate at Monterey was a fire marshal's requirement for $4,000 worth of automatic-closing corridor doors.

Proposed auditorium changes will be roughed out, to keep down costs, and other modifications for the addition and the existing building will be reduced, he said.

The addition with be of concrete construction, two storeys high and will provide six classrooms, a book storage room and an office.

Total cost estimated is $158,000 and the lowest bid opened was $212,742 from E. J. Hunter and Sons.

SAME BIDDER
The same contractor submitted the low bid for McKenzie School, $178,465, compared with an estimate of $137,500.

Four tenders were opened at 5:15 p.m. Friday. A fifth was received two minutes after the 5 p.m. deadline and was returned to the bidder, Slegg Bros., unopened.

Other bidders on the one-storey masonry addition to add eight rooms to the school were Farmer Construction, $188,877; G. H. Wheaton Ltd., $186,619; H. E. Fowler and Sons, $182,892, and M. P. Paine Co., $180,875.

Prim Little Town With No Imagination
Victoria is a prim little town with no imagination that should know better than to allow Emily Carr's last home to be sold and possibly destroyed, writer Howard O'Hagan charged today.

Mr. O'Hagan, who has lived in the Carr house for the last five years, hit the roof when asked his opinion about the fact that the house is up for sale.

"The house should be preserved as a historic monument. People—three or four of them every month—come by and want to be shown the place; they know it's important. It's important because Emily Carr lived here. Fourteen or 15 years from now, they'll say that Margaret Peterson lived here."

Margaret Peterson, noted sculptress, is Mr. O'Hagan's wife. She is now on a Canada Council grant to study in Europe, where Mr. O'Hagan is going to join her this week.

"That house is a nice old house, but it's not as convenient as a modern house, and they say they can't get a tenant for it, even with the rent at $35 a month."

"Well, I could get a tenant for them."

"It's been offered to the city, but the city turned it down."

WRITER:
"Victoria hasn't got so many historic buildings that they can be torn down wantonly."

"There's no imagination in this town. They're always talking about tourists."

"They ought to make the town decent for the people who live in it, and the tourists would come of their own accord."

"Victoria is a prim little town, an ugly town in a beautiful setting."

"But it's prim."

LENGTHY ILLNESS
The famous painter and writer had suffered a lengthy illness, and moved into the cottage where her sister lived and taught school to convalesce.

From it, one morning in February of 1945, she walked to a rest home on Government Street, having confessed to suddenly feeling very tired.

A week later she died there quietly.

Her sister, blind and two years older than gifted Emily, lived on until 1953, having seen recognition for Emily's achievements with brush and pen heaped upon her posthumously.

Since then, it has been occupied by artists Jan Zach and Margaret Peterson, and by Mr. O'Hagan.

Pipes 'n' Pouches for Pop Father's Day Gift Ideas

By PENNY SAVER

Whether you call him dad, pop, pa or a dignified father, it's his day on June 16, so Penny has been scouting for gift ideas. Smoke signal I spotted the other day led me to a local tobacconist shop which has several smoking specials for the occasion. (Please note: It is NOT a fire sale!)

For dads with only old pipes on hand, there is a "special" of good English-made pipes selling for just $1.95. Children with larger pocketbooks will find the same pipe as part of a package deal which includes a tobacco pouch, a two-ounce package of tobacco and a package of pipe cleaners, all for $3.45.

New kind of pouch Pop will like has two sections, one which is a tray from which pipe can be filled and another which holds tobacco when pouch is closed. Because the two sections fold together to close, side with tobacco in it becomes airtight. Price is $1.69.

A gift that will please Mom is a pipe rack. No more pipes lying hither and yon all over the house. Father will have no excuse for not keeping "everything in its place." Single rack is $2.95, double one $4.50. Both are made of walnut.

If Pa is messy in the car, too, get him a safety ash receiver which fits on to dashboard by means of a suction cup on the side. Cylindrical ash tray has small hole in top so that when cigarette is thrown in there are no fumes, flying sparks or ash. It is $1.29.

Another combined special is a storm lighter which comes complete with large tin of fuel and package of flints for $3.95.

DEAR ABBY...

A Mother's Pride

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have followed your column for years and have quietly applauded your advice to teen-agers. In raising my own daughter I went through all the normal trials and tribulations. Half the time I had a deep sense of failure.

Our daughter is now married and lives 800 miles away. We correspond regularly. Her last letter made me so happy I want to share part of its contents with you. You may publish it to let other parents know that the long hard fight they put up to raise good children is well worth the effort.

"Dear Mama: Since I have been married, and now that I am approaching parenthood, I've done a lot of thinking. To you and daddy I want to say 'thank you.' I don't believe any child ever really appreciates its parents while they are under the same roof. First, I want to thank you for being a good husband and wife to each other. Mom, by just being you, you taught me so much about being a good wife without saying a word. If I can be just half the mother to my children as you were to me, I'll be satisfied. I mean all the love and attention, and even all the 'hounding' you did when you thought it necessary to get after me about brushing my teeth, practicing the piano and going to church fellowship. For teaching me right from wrong, for teaching me to love and to share. And for giving me faith when everything seemed lost. I thank you with all my heart. I love both you and daddy very, very much."

That's it, Abby. Can you blame me for being—

A PROUD MAMA

DEAR PROUD: Certainly not. And the pride you feel at this moment is well deserved. Congratulations!

DEAR ABBY: The girls in my department got together and gave our foreman a surprise party for his 50th birthday. We had a birthday cake and all pitched in to buy him a wallet. After we sang "Happy Birthday" we lined up to give him a kiss. When it was my turn, I offered him my cheek. He said he didn't want THAT kind of a kiss from me. Abby, he is a grandfather and I am only 19, and I wouldn't think of kissing him on the lips. Now every time he sees me he kiddingly tells me I "owe" him a kiss and he makes a grab for me. I feel so self-conscious around him I find myself dodging him. Am I being childish? How can I keep him in his place?

OLD-FASHIONED

DEAR OLD-FASHIONED: You can keep him in his place by "kiddingly" calling him "grandpa." I don't think you're being childish—I think you're being wise.

DEAR ABBY: I am planning a party to which I would like to invite a sister-in-law of mine who is separated from her husband. Another one of my sisters-in-law says she will not come if the one who is separated from her husband is invited. I do not want to cause hard feelings. I want them both. What should I do?

PUZZLED RELATIVE

DEAR PUZZLED: Invite the one who is separated from her husband. The OTHER sister-in-law has no business putting you on the spot.

CONFIDENTIAL TO LENA: To remind your husband not to lift heavy tool boxes, label them HIS and HERNIA.

For a personal, unpublished answer to your letter, write ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Don't put off writing letters. Send one dollar to Abby for her booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

BE SMART—

Though this suit be white, color it rosy, like in future! It's textured Italian cotton (though you might prefer any other textured material) and it looks cool as a snowdrop. Divinely shaped and quite suitable (pun!) to a well-dressed summer.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Foods High In Health Value
Not Necessarily Expensive

It is often a puzzle when we see adults and children who look so very healthy when we know that they have little money to spend on food.

We wonder how they do it and what they eat. Here are a few of the answers. Many people shun food items which should be a part of their everyday diet for more expensive, exotic and more highly seasoned foods. The lowly dried bean is one of these. It is a splendid source of calcium, phosphorus, iron, manganese and copper. It also gives you vitamins.

Whole wheat is high in phosphorus, copper, iron, manganese and also has some calcium and iodine content. Oatmeal gives you iron, manganese, iodine, phosphorus and calcium. Molasses gives you phosphorus, calcium, manganese and it is a rich source of iron. Carrots, lettuce, cabbage and all of the greens are very valuable but inexpensive foods. Brown rice, liver, eggs and milk rate tops, but are a bit more expensive than some of the foods above. Powdered milk may be the answer if your family drinks a lot of it. Phosphorus affects the bones, teeth, glands and muscles and is thought to be especially happy in its effect on the nervous system. It has also been thought by some that this mineral is beautifying to the hair.

We all know that anemia will result unless we have enough iron. Here are a few of the richest sources: egg yolk, dried lima beans, liver, beef, oysters, molasses, whole wheat, oatmeal, dates, raisins, prunes, spinach, green peas, brown rice, beets, mushrooms, graham flour.

Don't pass up these foods which are so vital to your health and good looks.

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer

Burlap Popular Material For Summer Play Clothes

Dear Eunice:

"It looks like anything goes because I just saw some shorts made out of burlap. I would have thought this fabric would be too scratchy to wear in summer. Please tell me how to handle it and if it can be washed." Mrs. M.L.

Dear Mrs. M.L.:

Burlap would scratch and might be a little warm in very hot weather. However, it is being used in skirts and shorts for summer. Be sure to line your garments, both to help retain the shape and to make them more comfortable.

Often the skirts are lined in a provincial-type printed cotton. The same print can complete the ensemble look as a blouse and belt.

There are two grades of burlap, one is the type used in bags, the other is a little finer and is used for clothing. I have found the latter type is washable. However, it loses most of its body when laundered. If you lightly starch the garment and carefully hand wash it, it will look like new for a long time. (Burlap may also be dry-cleaned.)

Polio Victim Is Intrepid Traveler

By PAT DUFOUR

If ever an air line is in need of a good public relations officer its officials should head for the front door of Miss Clara Bernhardt's home in Preston, Ont.

Says Miss Bernhardt, who's been confined to a wheel chair since she was struck down by polio as a child of 11 "30-odd" years ago, "It's the only way to travel if your travelling companion is a wheel chair."

She elaborates: "Once you're on the plane, you just sit tight and you're there in no time."

Life "began three years ago" for Miss Bernhardt. This was when Lyndhurst Lodge, the paraplegic centre in Toronto, opened its doors for the first time to civilians. It had formerly concentrated on war victims.

"I contracted polio in the dark ages when not much could be done. So I determined to get into the lodge and learn enough to be able to move out of my chair into a car. This would be the first step toward satisfying my urge to travel."

Although the medical director warned her that this goal might take her two years she "graduated" in six weeks.

"But," she admits, "I was never so tired or worked so hard in all my life."

Hardly had the lodge's doors closed behind her before Miss Bernhardt began "to try her wings."

Naval Ball

The wardroom of HMCS Naden was aglow with color Friday evening when officers of the Esquimalt base and their friends attended the annual spring ball. There were 206 guests and the white-jacketed dress uniforms of the officers and richness of the guests' gowns were rivalled only by the lavish decorations.

In keeping with the theme, there were banks of brilliant flowers everywhere. Roses, carnations and other flowers enhanced the archway that led to the dance floor.

A miniature fleet of ships centred the long tables from which a buffet supper was served later in the evening. At one side of the centrepiece was a "garden," complete with pools and statue-studded fountain.

At the other end stood a huge candy castle that had turtles and goldfish swimming in its realistic moat. The table decorations were by CPO Morley Vollet and PO William Walker.

Guests danced to the music of a combo or sat at tables centred with Hawaiian candles.

All evening long, there were guests visiting the "gallery" in one of the upper lounges to view an exhibition of paintings. These, covering a variety of subjects, were all by students attending twice-weekly classes given by Capt. John Osborne, RCN (Ret.).

They included work by wives of officers and men, a number of naval personnel and their children.

For Travelers

A no-host dinner party is planned tonight at the Dingle House to honor well-known pianist Miss Mary Munn and Miss Margaret Ryall, who leave shortly for an eight-month visit overseas. Attending the dinner with the honor guests will be Mrs. H. Gregson, Mrs. A. Pohl, Mrs. T. W. Simpson, Misses Jean Boyd, Minnie Beveridge and Hilda Hesson.

In Kelowna

Miss Eve Lettice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lettice, left her Faithful Street home on Friday to attend the annual meeting of the British Columbia section of the Canadian Figure Skating Association to be held in Kelowna today.

Although Miss Clara Bernhardt now finds her wheel chair almost as exciting as a magic carpet there is one thing she would like to see changed. "I wish motels and hotels would make their bathroom doors wider—they're rarely large enough for wheel chairs!"

She booked in at Toronto's Park Plaza Hotel, phoned her family and told them she was "doing fine."

The next year, 1961, was the one in which she made her first "solo" trip. It was to South Carolina for a visit with a cousin. Her family had some misgivings about her ability to fend for herself but, as she cheerfully asserts, "There's only one way to find out about such things—do it!"

Having once found her wings, the enthusiastic traveler could hardly wait for the next summer and flight—this time to Bermuda.

BERMUDA PAL

She still receives letters from the elderly colored taxi driver, Robbie, who met her at the airport and became her "chauffeur" throughout her stay.

"I'll never forget his face when he saw me off at the plane. He gave me a passion flower—which in Bermuda takes the place of Hawaii's lei."

Her new-found freedom opened up new vistas in her home life too. The kitchen of the home she lives in with her father was remodelled so that cupboards, stove, refrigerator and other equipment were all at "wheel chair level."

Mr. and Mrs. David C. Brown are seen vacationing in Bermuda. After spending two weeks at the Sapphire Bay Cottage Colony which overlooks the south shore in Warwick Parish, Mr. and Mrs. Brown left Bermuda last weekend and are now holidaying in eastern Canada. They return to their home on Falkland Road on Monday. (Roger Smith, Bermuda News Bureau.)

Wedding Held in Sidney Church

Canon F. C. Vaughan-Birch, officiated at a ceremony in St. Andrew's Anglican Church, Sidney, this afternoon that united Carol Alice Anne Eagles, daughter of Mrs. J. Eagles, Sidney, and the late R. J. Eagles, and Norman Leslie Le Poidevin, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Le Poidevin, 848 Monterey Ave.

Mrs. E. A. Richardson played wedding music. The church was decorated with spring flowers and pews were marked with red roses, set in pink dollies, trimmed with white bows.

R. Martin, North Vancouver, gave his niece in marriage. Her floor-length gown of white Chantilly lace was styled on princess lines. Sequins edged the scalloped neckline. Sleeves ended in lily points and back of the full skirt was enhanced with bow and streamers. The shoulder length veil of nylon tulle misted from a pearl coronet. White carnations and red roses were in the cascade bouquet.

Maid of honor, Miss Rita Smyth, wore a pink chiffon gown with headpiece of pink chiffon, net and flowers and carried white carnations accented with pink. Jewelry was a silver bracelet, gift of the bride. Similar ensemble in aqua shade and white carnations highlighted in same tone were chosen by bridesmaid, Mrs. Robert Richardson.

Bob Faith, Victoria, was best man and ushers were Dave Johnson, Victoria, and Ted Eagles, North Bend, B.C.

Pink and white streamers decorated the Royal Canadian Legion Hall at Sidney for the reception which followed.

This done, Miss Bernhardt took over running the house and doing the cooking with only a weekly "assist" from a cleaning woman.

She recalls, "I was scared to death! Up to then I couldn't even boil an egg but I soon learned."

"Not that her life before that had been entirely restrictive. A prolific writer, Miss Bernhardt has had two novels published and some books of poetry. She also writes a weekly column, "From Where I Sit" for the Preston Times and works for yet another newspaper, the Hesperian Herald.

In addition she takes an active part in Lutheran Church affairs and is much in demand at concerts. She is a mezzo soprano.

This is Miss Bernhardt's first visit to Victoria. She's here as the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Skinner. Mrs. Skinner and her visitor met many years ago when they owned adjoining cottages at Georgian Bay, Ont.

Although she's enthusiastically "taking in all the sights" during her stay, Miss Bernhardt is still looking forward to the return plane trip.

"I've never experienced anything more terrific than the sight of the Rockies stretched out below you."

To Live In Ontario

Following their wedding in St. Andrew's Chapel of HMCS Naden this afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Edward McNulty left for Camp Borden, Ont., where the groom is stationed.

Bride, the former Carolyn Merle Eaton, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Eaton, 767 Newport Avenue. Groom is the son of Mrs. F. A. McNulty of Moncton, N.B., and the late Mr. McNulty.

Floral baskets decorated the church for the afternoon ceremony, at which Chaplain D. Logan officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Exquisite imported French white silk brocade gown was in street length and fashioned with scoop neckline and three-quarter length sleeves in a simple princess line. Coronet of simulated pearls held in place her shoulder-length veil, which was edged with lace.

Bouquet of pink rosebuds and carnations was highlighted by a white orchid and enhanced by white stephanotis spray. For "something old" the bride wore a culture pearl single-strand necklace, the gift of an old family friend, Mrs. Helen Cliffe.

Only attendant was matron of honor Mrs. G. King who was gown in pink chiffon with three-quarter length sleeves and full skirt with chiffon rose as back detail.

Her ensemble was completed by a floral and net whimsy hat and bouquet of white gardenia and carnations.

Pink rosettes decorated the wedding cake which centred the bride's table at the reception held in Chez Marcel after the wedding. Cake was flanked by pink candles and bouquets of pink rosebuds. H. Maddaford proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

Leaving on the trip to Ontario the bride wore a three-piece pink and white double knit suit, complemented by floral hat in pink and white and white orchid corsage.

19-Year-Old Soldier Guilty Of Assault

A dark-eyed beauty told in city police court Friday how a P.C.L.I. soldier broke into her apartment May 10, pushed her down on the bed and said: "It would be very easy to rape you."

Mrs. Patricia Corbett, 1136 Queens Avenue, was testifying at the trial of Thomas Galbraith, Work Point Barracks, for indecent assault, breaking and entering, and being unlawfully in a dwelling house.

Magistrate William Ostler found the 19-year-old soldier guilty of indecent assault but not guilty of the other two charges. Galbraith was remanded to June 7 for a probation report and sentence.

ACCUSED FELL IN

Mrs. Corbett said she was in a night gown getting ready for bed when the door of her duplex apartment broke open "and the accused fell in."

She said she ran to her bedroom to get away but Galbraith grabbed her and pushed her down on the bed in a sitting-up position.

Then, she said, "He gave me to the count of five to lie down. He said one... two..."

"I got up, shoved him. I think he tripped over the rug. Landed on the floor. I ran past him. He grabbed my arm. I started screaming. He ran."

Mrs. Corbett said Galbraith was "pretty well under the influence of alcohol."

DRINKING AT PARTY

Galbraith told the court he had been drinking a lot of beer before going to a party next door to Mrs. Corbett's residence. He said he left to make a telephone call at a corner kiosk and when he returned he walked into the wrong house by mistake.

Galbraith said he didn't remember much that happened after that until he was arrested by police. The magistrate said it would have been easy for the accused to mistake the house in the darkness and on account of his partial drunkenness.

But Magistrate Ostler said Galbraith's drunkenness "falls very short" of being a defence on the indecent assault charge.

Navy Holds 'Grumble' Exercise

The second shipping control exercise of the current year is slated for the weekend of June 7, the RCN Pacific Command announced today.

Termed "Exercise Grumble," it will be a paper-work operation involving ships, facilities, and personnel of federal and provincial agencies, the Pacific Maritime Command, and the principal ports of the West Coast.

Principal purpose of the exercise is to test plans and arrangements already made "to insure the maximum number of merchant ships (all non-Navy ships) survive any unexpected attack so they may be employed firstly for survival, and later to participate in the support of military retaliation."

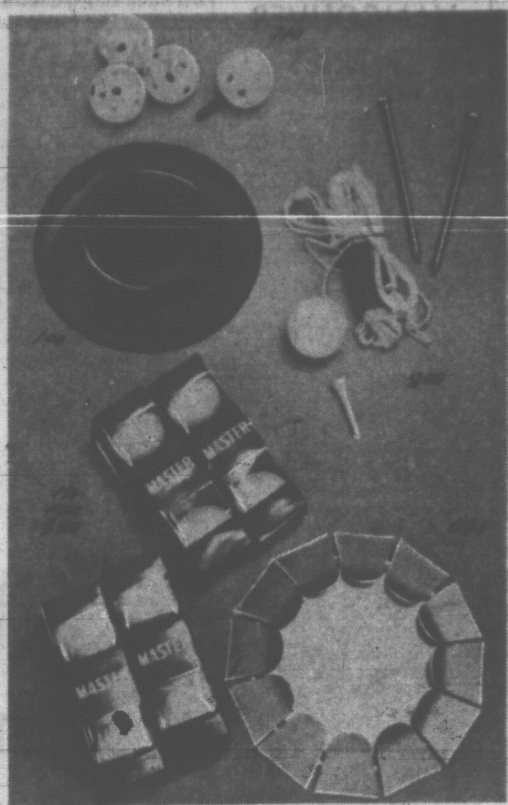

Participating in the paper exercise will be more than 100 representatives of the Control of Shipping Organization, representing the Department of Transport, Department of Fisheries and Canada Customs, and commercial shipping firms.

Last Picture of Pontiff

Pope John is shown as he recorded a radio message at the Vatican to the faithful of the Sanctuary of Piety, near Katowice, Poland, last Saturday. The message is customarily sent on the last Sunday of May each year. It was the final public photo before he was confined to bed.

Pope Clings On By Thin Thread

Simple Prayers By Pontiff

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope John XXIII slipped back and forth between coma and consciousness today, slowly but steadily sinking toward death.

"I have been able to follow the course of my death step by step," he told a prelate in a period of lucidity. "Now I am going sweetly toward the end."

Vatican radio told how close the Pope was to death. It said: "Short of a miracle, he could be expected to die at any moment."

His was a desperate struggle against the onslaught of a stomach tumor, hemorrhages and peritonitis.

He regained consciousness at least three times today.

But Vatican radio said he "remained on the threshold of this life and the next."

POPE SERENE

Prelates who came away from his bedside in the apostolic palace said he was serene despite the pain that wracked his body. "We are suffering, but suffering with love," Vatican radio quoted him as saying. Repeatedly he invoked the name of Jesus.

The pontiff's periods of unconsciousness began Friday night. Early Saturday morning he had a long period of consciousness during which he blessed his relatives—three brothers and a sister—and the grieving prelates in his sickroom.

He slipped in and out of unconsciousness.

Between 8 a.m. and 3:40 p.m. the Pope was unconscious. Oxygen was administered. His temperature rose. Injections of pain killer were administered. Doctors all but lost hope of keeping him alive another day, but they worked feverishly at his bedside.

The Pope recovered consciousness briefly at least twice in the afternoon and was reported lucid enough to bless those at his bedside once again and to tell them that he regarded his life as a sacrifice to his goals—Christian unity and world peace.

Few had expected the Pope would live into the new day. Minute by minute, then hour by hour, the bulletins from the Vatican radio and press office had prepared the waiting Catholic world for the news of his death.

Ferdinand Cardinal Cerni, who recited prayers for the dying at the pontiff's bedside Friday, said he heard Pope John murmur then: "I wish to be taken away, so I can be with Christ."

The pontiff had amazed his doctors when he came out of his earlier coma at 3 a.m. and sat up in bed.

The Vatican said the Pope kissed a crucifix and blessed

VATICAN CITY (AP)—A dying Pope John prayed hour after hour while pain tormented his body.

His words made men of religion weep and put a catch in the throats of the worldly.

"The Holy Father's serenity and constancy with which his thoughts have been focused on God . . . have touched all hearts," was the way Vatican radio phrased it.

What were the prayers on the Pope's lips?

Over and over the Pope repeated a simple aspiration that he learned as a child, a formulation that Roman Catholic school children and illiterate natives in mission lands are encouraged to say in their minds: "Jesus, Jesus."

He repeatedly turned his thoughts to his favorite evangelist, John, and whispered in Latin the words that Christ spoke before he raised Lazarus, the brother of Mary and Martha: "I am the resurrection and the life." (John XI: 25)

The quotation continues: "He who believes in me, even if he die, shall live."

Once when his doctor was bending low over him, the Pope said:

"With death a new life starts—the glorification of Christ."

More than once, the Pope said a prayer that he put repeatedly into addresses and talks at audiences since his ecumenical council began: "Ut unum sint"—that all may be one.

It was a prayer that Christ spoke to his apostles before he began agony in the garden, a prayer for the disciples to go into the world and spread belief in Christ "that all may be one, even as Thou, Father, in Me and I in Thee." (John XVII: 21)

Pope John said during one period of consciousness: "I long to be taken away to be with Christ."

Much of the Pope's prayer was to ask blessings on the council, the church and all men working for peace. He expressed the intention many times from the first hours of his suffering, earlier in the week.

Whenever he was not praying or unconscious, Pope John was turning his eyes toward those near him to ask, according to a Vatican communiqué, "forgiveness of all those whom he may have failed in the delicacy of his sentiment from the time of his youth until today."

Wind 'Sits It Out' In Swiftsure Start

By MONTE ROBERTS

The appointed time was 9:30 a.m. today, the place Brocton Ledge on the Dallas Road waterfront. The yachts were there—78 of them—the crews were there, more than 600 of them—the spectator boats, aircraft and helicopters were there—dozens of them—and the waterfront watchers were there, in thousands.

But the appointment was missed by that most necessary component, the wind.

The result was the most dismal start for the Swiftsure ocean yacht racing classic ever witnessed in the 12 years I have been an observer.

INCOMING TIDE

Any sort of wind would have ensured a reasonable start, as there was a very slight incoming tide running—you could almost call it slack water.

But the wind sighed along listlessly, at less than 10 miles per hour from the southeast.

Then, just at the starting gun, the breeze fluked around to the west, catching most of the big boats away out of position to the east of the starting line.

At 10:30, several of them—including HMCS Oriole, Tafoosh, Dorade—had to drop anchor to stay their backward progress in the Clover Point area.

SPLIT IN TWO

At noon the fleet was split approximately in two, with the smaller boats—mainly BB and B class—in the area between William Head and Saxe Point—and the bigger yachts striving manfully to make time from Clover Point to at least cross the starting line.

Freshening winds are expected late this afternoon and early evening, dying off again overnight.

This could be one of the slowest races in Swiftsure history—say 40 hours for the first boat home.

SOMEbody has to finish within 50 hours or the race will be declared over at the Swiftsure marker.

Small restaurants, which do not receive food or goods from other states, presumably would not be affected. However, virtually all do.

IMPLEMENT ORDER

The school legislation reported under consideration would be designed to implement the 1955 U.S. Supreme Court order that public schools be desegregated with "all deliberate speed."

The bill would leave the door open for local officials to set up specific timetables to effect desegregation under the guidance of federal authorities.

Where this is not done, federal authorities would be empowered to set a timetable on their own, subject to court review. Should local officials refuse to meet it they would face federal prosecution.

Congressional sources said Friday Attorney-General Kennedy will present the new legislation next Thursday in a public hearing before the House of Representatives Judiciary committee.

JFK Pushes Up Civil Rights Law

(See also Page 3)

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration is expected to ask Congress next week for new legislation to speed desegregation of school and public accommodations.

The two-bill package, coupled with voluntary removal of racial barriers by some southern businessmen, is designed to ease the integration crisis in the United States.

Prime consideration, it was learned, is being given to a public accommodations bill that would prohibit racial discrimination by businesses involved in interstate commerce.

The hope is that such a measure may alleviate tensions arising from sit-in demonstrations at department store lunch coun-

RCMP 'Fishing Expeditions' Blasted by New Democrats

By ARCH MACKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCMP drew another broadside from the New Democrats Friday about security operations.

The force has gone "far beyond its responsibilities" in investigating such groups as the Voice of Women and the Canadian Peace Research Institute, National Leader T. C. Douglas said in the Commons.

David Orlikow MP for Winnipeg North, said "fishing expeditions" by the Mounties to universities and elsewhere still are going on.

Colin Cameron, veteran socialist from Nanaimo-Cowichan Islands, cited two cases in detail to declare that "right now the situation is nothing short of a disgrace."

The episode in the Friday session of the Commons was part of a varied day. Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier, who answers to Parliament for the RCMP, was absent but State Secretary Pickersgill said he will make a statement later.

Eldon Woolfham (PC—Bow River) said the RCMP is one of the world's finest police forces. It was necessary to maintain vigilance against Communist subversion, from whatever source.

The RCMP debate arose as "grievances"—a process conducted when the government periodically asks for a fresh supply of spending money—were discussed. This money bill was still being debated Friday and will come up again Monday.

Mr. Cameron said he was approached the day after the April 8 election by a married couple. The wife had been visited by an RCMP intelligence

Be Different, and Proud Of It, Canadians Advised

By JIM NEAVES
WINNIPEG (CP). — A doctor from England said here Thursday more individual thought is needed in Canada.

Dr. Peter Peacock, Saskatoon medical health officer, said in an interview Canada needs people "who are prepared to be different and not ashamed to be."

Dr. Peacock, born in England and in practice for a time in South Africa, was a panelist during a discussion of mental health at the annual convention of the Canadian Public Health Association.

He said many Canadians hide talents that set them apart because "we have made such a god of democratic equality."

There is an "incredible degree of uniformity" in Prairie houses, gardens, streets and buildings. "It's hard to tell what town you're in—they all look alike."

He said this situation is unhealthy from a mental standpoint and there was no "ready" answer to the question of conformity.

"We'll just have to keep on explaining that it's not always in advantage to be average."

During the panel discussion Dr. Peacock said Canadian standards of behavior are too rigid.

"There is a rigidity which we must try to break down if people who deviate slightly — though not significantly — from the pattern are not to feel out of step."

The majority of people enter mental hospitals not because they want to "but because there is family or public rejection of their behavior patterns. The local general practitioner, with a sense of helplessness, bows his head to public opinion."

Earlier Thursday, in a panel discussion on school health services, Dr. K. E. G. Benson of Victoria, assistant British Columbia health officer, said routine school medical examinations should be discontinued.

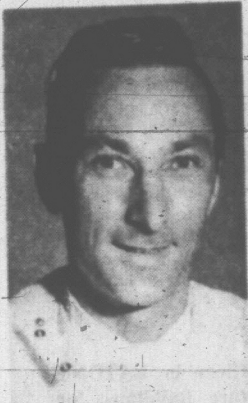

A recent provincial survey "found that year after year 85 per cent of children examined in schools had no physical, mental or emotional defects."

Time taken for these examinations could be used in other aspects of health education.

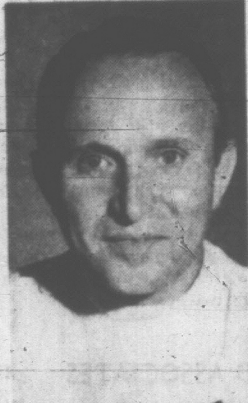

Dr. O. H. Curtis, deputy health minister for Prince Edward Island, was elected president of the association, succeeding Dr. K. C. Charron of Ottawa.

Plane Douses Three Blazes

Three forest fires in a week have been struck out by the big Martin Mars water bomber.

The latest was a 45-acre fire at Memekay, near Sayward on northern Vancouver Island on Thursday.

The 42-ton flying boat made nine "drops" on the fire, leaving ground crews to perform mop-up operations.

The fire had been advancing through slash towards felled and bucked timber, and was about 1,500 feet long when the big black plane dropped its load.

A fire southwest of Honey-moon Bay was destroyed by the Mars last week, and one near Lake Cowichan was taken out on Monday.

The water bomber is operated by Forest Industries Flying Tankers, Ltd.

CBC SCORED

Undermind Morals —Thompson

OTTAWA (CP). — Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said in the Commons Friday that CBC radio satirist Max Ferguson is broadcasting skits that are "undermining our national morals."

While many other MPs loudly expressed displeasure with the question, Mr. Thompson asked what the government intends to do about programs "obviously harmful to the security and well-being of our nation."

Replied State Secretary J. W. Pickersgill, in effect — not a thing.

Mr. Pickersgill said that in any free society nothing is more undesirable than to have the government directing "broadcasting, the press, or any other medium of public information."

"No one in this government has any such thought," he said.

Mr. Pickersgill, the minister who reports to Parliament on broadcasting, said the best way for Parliament to deal with broadcasting — at least the public side of it — is to ensure that the most able persons are appointed to the CBC board of directors and management.

Mr. Pickersgill said he was sure the management of the publicly-owned CBC would take Mr. Thompson's views into account.

The Social Credit leader was referring to two particular skits broadcast Wednesday on Mr. Ferguson's morning program.

One skit, Mr. Thompson said in the House on Wednesday, dealt with a meeting between President Kennedy and a top Canadian official in which the president kept urging that Canada take extra nuclear weapons.

The other skit was based on the anniversary of the "great fight at Stony Creek of 1812 or 1813" — as Mr. Thompson described it — and had Prime Minister Pearson and U.S. Ambassador Walton Butterworth looking on.

After the exchange, Friday with the minister, Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) suggested Mr. Pickersgill should listen to the program whenever he can to enjoy "its very good humor."

Swedish doctors, are using stainless, acid-proof ball bearings — inserted between the vertebrae — to cure serious slip disc cases.

Third Sacred Resigns From Quebec Wing

QUEBEC (CP). — Louis Frechette, defeated Social Credit candidate in Quebec South in the April 8 federal election, announced Wednesday night he was resigning from the Quebec wing of the party.

Earlier Wednesday, Raymond Blaney and Roger Lemieux, members of the executive of the "Montmagny-Islet" constituency, announced their resignations, also in letters to Laurent Legault, president of Le Ralliement des Creditistes, Quebec wing of the party.

Mr. Frechette said he disapproved of the Quebec wing's attitude to the six Social Credit MPs who announced their support for the Liberal party and later repudiated their statement.

"I also disapprove of Real Caouette, deputy national leader of the party and head of the Quebec wing and range myself beside Robert Thompson," he said in a telephone interview.

Mr. Blaney earlier took the same political position and Mr. Lemieux also said he had confidence in Mr. Thompson.

Band Program

Belmont High School Band, directed by Donald R. Kerley, will give a program of light music in Beacon Hill Park Sunday at 3 p.m.

The program will include Mozart's Marriage of Figaro, Eric Coates' Knightsbridge March and a selection from "Manhattan" by Rodgers and Hart.

Cast Aluminum Sockeye Salmon Grace New Alexandra Bridge

By HUMPHREY DAVY
Four large sculptured salmon cast in aluminum, the work of a Victoria artist, were mounted Friday on the portals of the newly completed Alexandra Bridge on the Fraser River, 25 miles north of Hope.

The sculptured pieces were conceived and carried out in Victoria over a period of three years. The fish are the work of Mrs. J. A. (Betts) Burchett, 2660 Arbutus Road.

The casting was done by Victoria Foundries Ltd., under the direction of Ray Smith, manager. Commissioned by A. B. Sanderson, consulting engineer, to do a decorative motif for the bridge, Mrs. Burchett worked long hours to sculpt a sockeye salmon—the fish which is truly representative of the Fraser River.

SYMBOL OF THE FRASER RIVER, the sculptured aluminum salmon, executed by a Victoria artist, were installed Friday on the portals of Alexandra Bridge near Hope. The models are the work of Mrs. J. A. (Betts) Burchett, shown in picture.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, JUNE 1, 1963—PAGE 19

Arthur Mayse

It is time to praise famous men once more, and for our subject we will take a former editor of a Vancouver daily who strides through my unpruned garden of memories like a giant among Hottentots.

Since he's still very much alive and kicking, I'd best identify him only as Whirling Bob.

To those of us who worked on that sheet when we and the world were younger—including a large and breezy reporter by the name of Keate—Whirling Bob's name still radiates a peculiar magic.

He was brilliant, moody and temperamental. Where news was concerned, his hunches were nothing less than eerie. His temper reached flash-point at one degree above body heat, and he believed the least of his staff should be able to master any gambit up to and including the theory of relativity in no more than three weeks.

We loved him. We hated him. We sneered when he ceremoniously donned his tie before calling the managing director on his intercom; we cheered him as he tackled the top brass for a raise in our miserable pay.

Whirling Bob broke our hearts and saved our bacon, and hammered us into newsmen.

The name we knew him by at a safe distance—came from one of his minor foibles.

His office was a raucous enclosure which we called the bullpen. Let something big break close to deadline, say a bank holdup or a double murder, and Whirling Bob would go into his routine.

His swivel chair would commence to twirl; slowly at first, then as newsmen tension mounted, at an ever brisker pace.

By the time the story was in the bag, Whirling Bob would be spinning like a kid on a piano stool.

Under pressure, he would also eat copy paper, the stuff we bang out the news on. I don't mean he chewed it. He would grope vaguely with one large hand for the stack beside his typewriter, gather up a wad, and set to on it after the fashion of a rabbit with a carrot.

At such times it was his habit to rear up from his hard-used chair and march out to the newsroom, his paper lunch still in his fist.

Once when I was a green junior, I snatched an interview with an over-merry logger who had jumped off Lion's Gate Bridge 'yoost for the fun of it.'

To have headline shadowing me was nerve-shaking; to know a front page spot was being held for the story, plumb demoralizing. But what properly shattered me was to hear behind me and close above, the sound of Whirling Bob's jaws working on a twist of copy paper.

I spelled three words wrong in a row, then my wits froze solid. But the expected temp-est didn't break.

"Take it easy," said Whirling Bob. "Relax." And with a pat to my shoulder, steadily munching, "You've got plenty of time... Four minutes."

Because of such episodes—flashes of kindness when we looked for the roof to tumble in on us—we loved him even more than we hated him.

He went to bat for us whether we were right or wrong.

He rescued us when we got bogged beyond our own powers of extrication in some piece of youthful folly, giving us the devil afterward, of course.

What he asked of us, and all he asked, was that we help him get out a good daily.

Today, Whirling Bob is a writer-editor turning out think-pieces read by millions, each a masterpiece of its kind. I'm told his office rug is the sort you sink ankle-deep in, and that his desk covers a quarter-acre.

But he still twirls in his chair, I'll bet, and when the going gets rough, reaches for a snack of newsprint.

STUDIED SUBJECT

"I had to study the salmon before making the fish," she said. "This entailed studying pickled salmon or fresh whole salmon—bought at the fish-mongers."

Mrs. Burchett is a talented artist in more than one way.

She sculpts animals, especially dogs, which have won her recognition in the United States.

She is also a skilful potter, an art she learned by herself several years ago.

"There were no instructors in Victoria then," she said. "So I had to rely on books."

Mrs. Burchett lives in a Tudor-style home which she and her husband designed and built.

Apart from sculpting and potting, she finds time to look after a large garden, breed Dachshunds (four of her dogs are champions) and to participate in dog obedience trials.

FIRST FOR FIRM

Mr. Smith, who supervised the casting of the fish, said it was the first time his firm had ever undertaken such a job.

"We undertook to do the casting because it was a challenge," he said. "I must admit I didn't sleep for many nights, but now I'm satisfied that we can do it."

He said the casting involved many technical problems which took time to solve.

Others who worked on the technical aspects of the job were Bernard Baldwin, Stan Smith and Don Irish. Cliff Irvine was pattern maker.

Works Department Surveying Growth Of Government

A special survey is under way on the growth of B.C. government in the next decade.

All provincial departments have been requested to fill out a questionnaire.

It asks how much space they are using now, how many employees they have and what they anticipate in the next 10 years.

It was sent around by the public works department to guide planning for future expansion.

The department is trying to establish a ratio of growth to gauge its building program.

Some departments are already seriously cramped in space and have been crying for new offices.

One plea has just been recognized—the need for a new museum and archives.

Emily Carr's Last Home 'On the Block'

By LESLIE MILLIN

The house in which Emily Carr spent her last days will be sold if a buyer can be found. The Times learned today.

Asking price is reported to be $7,000.

The one-storey home, hidden in a tangle of bushes at 218 St. Andrews Street in the James Bay district, was the property of Miss Alice Carr, Emily's sister, who died in 1953.

It is administered as part of a secret trust which the trustees, Canada Permanent Trust Company, refuse to discuss.

Present owner is believed to be Walter Koerner, former lumber magnate and art patron.

Tenant until last week was noted Victoria writer Howard O'Hagan, who rented the house from the estate.

DESTRUCTION SURE

The ramshackle house with its unkempt gardens and weathered exterior is almost certain to be destroyed if sold, according to reliable sources.

Area is zoned for high-rise apartment development, and the house would probably be razed to make room for a building like the two multi-storey structures within a few blocks.

The Carr house is the second historic Victoria home to be threatened in recent weeks by the wrecker's hammer.

The Simon Fraser Tolmie house on Cloverdale Avenue is also being cleared away.

Emily Carr moved into the house a few years before she died in 1945.

LENGTHY ILLNESS

The famous painter and writer had suffered a lengthy illness, and moved into the cottage where her sister lived and taught school to convalesce.

From it, one morning in February of 1945, she walked to a rest home on Government Street, having confessed to suddenly feeling very tired.

A week later she died there quietly.

Her sister, blind and two years older, than gifted Emily, lived on until 1953, having seen recognition for Emily's achievements with brush and pen heaped upon her posthumously.

Since then, it has been occupied by artists Jan Zach and Margaret Peterson, and by Mr. O'Hagan.

B.C.'s Farm Income Reaches Record High

Farm cash income of B.C. farmers in 1962 reached a record high of $151.1 million—an

Low Sugar Price Being Held By Independents

Victoria's sugar price war stood pat today, despite reports that it couldn't carry on much longer.

Independent retailers are still selling a 10-pound bag of sugar for $1.49, and major chain stores are still selling it for $1.89.

Spokesmen for the big chain stores continue to consider their cut-rate competition as being of only short duration.

And independent operators seem firm about keeping the price at the present level.

Cut-rate price is set at the local level, and cuts into dealer profit.

increase of $13.9 million over last year, agriculture minister Frank Richter announced Friday.

"This is a continuation of the strong upward trend which began in 1956," Mr. Richter said.

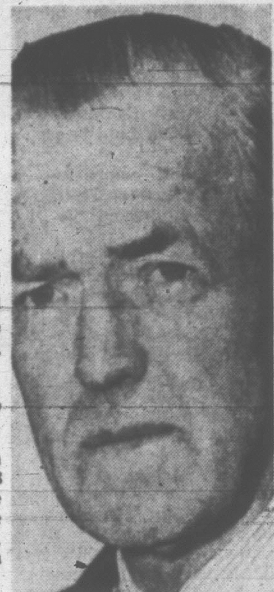

Most important commodities produced by B.C. farmers in 1962 were:

Dairy products $36.1 million; cattle and calves $30.4 million; fruit $19.1 million; eggs $15.3 million; poultry $12.2 million; vegetables and potatoes $10.2 million, and wheat $3.7 million.

"The outlook for 1963 is bright in all phases of B.C. agriculture," the minister said. He announced that his department will carry out a survey of the B.C. vegetable industry during June.

"The province is growing rapidly and our need for fresh vegetables is increasing daily. We would therefore like to have an accurate picture of what is being grown in B.C. and where."

Special survey forms will be sent to all commercial growers next week.

HOWARD O'HAGAN ... "It's important"

WRITER:

'Prim Little Town With No Imagination'

Victoria is a prim little town with no imagination that should know better than to all. Emily Carr's last home to be sold and possibly destroyed, writer Howard O'Hagan charged today.

Mr. O'Hagan, who has lived in the Carr house for the last five years, hit the roof when asked his opinion about the fact that the house is up for sale.

"The house should be preserved as a historic monument. People—three or four of them every month—come by and want to be shown the place; they know it's important."

"It's important because Emily Carr lived here. Fourteen or 15 years from now, they'll say that Margaret Peterson lived here."

(Margaret Peterson, noted sculptress, is Mr. O'Hagan's wife. She is now on a Canada Council grant to study in Europe, where Mr. O'Hagan is going to join her this week.)

"That house is a nice old house, but it's not as convenient as a modern house, and they say they can't get a tenant for it, even with the rent at $35 a month."

"Well, I could get a tenant for them. It's been offered to the city, but the city turned it down."

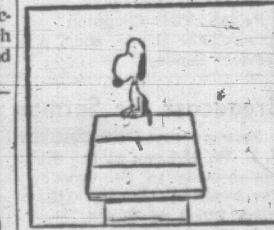

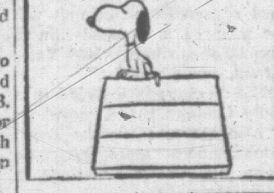

"Victoria hasn't got so many historic buildings that they can be torn down wantonly."

"There's no imagination in this town. They're always talking about tourists."

"They ought to make the town decent for the people who live in it, and the tourists would come of their own accord."

"Victoria is a prim little town, an ugly town in a beautiful setting."

"But it's prim."

Red Shield Drive Short

The Salvation Army fund drive in Victoria has reached $21,000 or 38 per cent of its $55,000 objective, general fund chairman Courtney Haddock reported today.

"It is running slower this year than last," he said. "Returns from the areas already canvassed have been most encouraging, but a great deal of canvassing remains to be done."

The campaign will continue until June 16 to permit a complete canvass of areas not covered so far.

Mr. Haddock said a good deal of the money collected this year will go to the Army's Harbor Light Corps operating from the new building at 516 Yates.

"Almost everyone is aware of the vitally important work being done by the Salvation Army in our community," Mr. Haddock said.

BOATERS IGNORE ROYAL OWNERSHIP

Busiest Island in Strait

Don't look now, Princess Margaret, there are footprints on your island.

While there are delicate negotiations in the hierarchy of protocol about how to get back the island B.C. gave to the princess, and make it into a park, the public is flocking there anyway every weekend.

"The beach is really crowded—you should see all the boats out there on a Sunday. It's fantastic," said a parks official.

Technically Princess Margaret Island (nee Portland Island) is owned by Her Royal Highness.

But in fact it's being used as an unofficial marine park right now.

Viscount Amory, the U.K. high commissioner to Canada, said here Friday that that contractors can't hope to meet.

He blamed the education department's school building branch.

He said neither the design architect nor the school board are to blame for the great gulf between estimate and bids.

LITTLE CONTROL

The board has little control over building expenditures because the provincial government provides much of the capital cost, guarantees school board borrowing, and must approve construction plans.

Comment arose as a result of Victoria school board opening tenders this week, in which low bids were $95,000 greater than specification estimates for two additions.

The amount is the difference between two low tenders opened by Greater Victoria School Board this week and the amount authorized by referendum to cover additions to Monterey and McKenzie Avenue Schools.

"The architect feels he can bring down the figures," building committee chairman George Curran said.

Architect R. W. Siddall meets with him and the building superintendent Monday to pare the specifications.

The referendum was passed nearly two years ago, but even increased building costs since then would not fully account for the high bids, Mr. Curran said.

DOORS EXPENSIVE

He said one reason for a higher estimate at Monterey was a higher estimate at Monterey was a fire marshal's requirement for $4,000 worth of automatic-closing corridor doors.

Proposed auditorium changes will be roughed only, to keep down costs, and other modifications for the addition and the existing building will be reduced, he said.

The addition will be of concrete construction, two storeys high and will provide six classrooms, a book storage room and an office.

Total cost estimated is $158,000 and the lowest bid opened was $212,742 from E. J. Hunter and Sons.

SAME BIDDER

The same contractor submitted the low bid for McKenzie School, $178,465, compared with an estimate of $137,500.

Four tenders were opened at 5:15 p.m. Friday. A fifth was received two minutes after the 5 p.m. deadline and was returned to the bidder, Sleggs Bros., unopened.

Other bidders on the one-storey masonry addition to add eight rooms to the school were Farmer Construction, $188,877; G. H. Wheaton Ltd., $186,619; H. E. Fowler and Sons, $182,892, and M. P. Paine Co., $180,575.

SPEAKING Monday noon at a meeting of Victoria Gyro Club in the Empress Hotel is former Canadian justice minister and now leader of B.C. Progressive Conservative party, E. Davis Fulton of Kamloops.

Police Had No Eye For Style

A prisoner didn't think much of the clothes police picked for him to wear in court this morning and he appeared without them.

Clinging to his dignity and a dressing gown, he told Magistrate J.A. Byers: "The clothes are not necessarily the ones I would have chosen."

He was wearing a dressing gown when arrested but police brought his clothes to the station.

"Have you not got any clothes?" asked the magistrate when he entered the dock this morning.

"I have."

"Why don't you wear them?"

NOT HIS CHOICE

"The clothes are not necessarily the ones I would have chosen," replied the accused. Magistrate Byers ordered him remanded until Monday and to appear then properly dressed.

He asked for bail but Magistrate Byers wouldn't even consider it.

"I can't hear you in your present state of undress."

The man was the only person to appear in court today. An official estimated it cost the city at least $100 for a magistrate, a prosecutor, two police guards and a stenographer to hear the case.

Convention Centre Meeting on Monday

Proposals for the establishment of a convention centre in Victoria will be discussed Monday by a special committee set up by Victoria Chamber of Commerce retail merchants group.

The committee will meet in the Chamber board room at 10 a.m. under the chairmanship of Mrs. Irene Warren.

Later it will report to the chamber directors.

it was a difficult situation but indicated some negotiations were underway.

At a recent press conference Premier Bennett refused to enlighten reporters on the situation.

"I never comment on royalty," he said. The parks branch hopes eventually that the island can be developed as a provincial recreation project, but there are no plans drawn up at present.

No money has been set aside for the project, either.

The parks branch has recently been concentrating on a number of other Gulf Island projects, including South Pender, Gabriola, Montague Harbor and Bedwell Bay.

Topics of the Day

St. Louis College Alumni and Associates Association will hold its annual banquet tonight at 7 in the Elk's Cormorant Street Hall.

Guest of honor will be Bishop Remi De Roo of Victoria.

Nelson Foster, a member of Victoria Lions Club and past zone chairman, was elected governor of district 19A Friday at the Lions annual district convention in Seattle.

M. V. Patriarche, son of Air Commodore V. H. Patriarche, 1377 Rockland, has received his commission as a flying officer in the RCAF on graduation from Royal Military College, Kingston, Ontario, with a bachelor of engineering degree.

Ask The Times

Q. At what rate is Canada's population growing? T.D.

A. During the last 10 years, Canada's population increased 30 per cent from 14,000,429 to 18,238,247.

Q. Regarding the CPR boat, the Islander, which sank at the turn of the century—is some of the treasure on it yet to be recovered? R.T.P.

A. When the Islander hit an iceberg in the Lynn Canal near Juneau, Alaska, Aug. 15, 1901, it was said $300,000 in gold was aboard. However, only $50,000 has been recovered as most of the gold was believed to have been scattered by an explosion before the ship went under.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration is expected to ask Congress next week for new legislation to speed desegregation of school and public accommodations.

The two-bill package, coupled with voluntary removal of racial barriers by some southern businessmen, is designed to ease the integration crisis in the United States.

Prime consideration, it was learned, is being given to a public accommodations bill that would prohibit racial discrimination by businesses involved in interstate commerce.

The hope is that such a measure may alleviate tensions arising from sit-in demonstrations at department store lunch counters.

Most Recent Picture of Pontiff

message is customarily sent on the last Sunday of May each year. It was the final public photo before he was confined to bed.

Simple Prayers By Pontiff

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A dying Pope John prayed hour after hour while pain tormented his body.

His words made men of religion weep and put a catch in the throats of the worldly.

"The Holy Father's serenity and constancy with which his thoughts have been focused on God... have touched all hearts," was the way Vatican radio phrased it.

What were the prayers on the Pope's lips?

Over and over the Pope repeated a simple aspiration that he learned as a child, a formulation that Roman Catholic school children and illiterate natives in mission lands are encouraged to say in their minds:

"Jesus, Jesus."

SERENE DESPITE PAIN

Pope Clings on By Thin Thread

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII slipped back and forth between coma and consciousness today, slowly but steadily sinking toward death.

"I have been able to follow the course of my death step by step," he told a prelate in a period of lucidity. "Now I am going sweetly toward the end."

Vatican radio told how close the Pope was to death. It said: "Short of a miracle, he could be expected to die at any moment."

His was a desperate struggle against the onslaught of a stomach tumor, hemorrhages and peritonitis.

Ferdinando Cardinal Cento, who recited prayers for the dying at the pontiff's bedside Friday, said he heard Pope John murmur then: "I wish to be taken away, so I can be with Christ."

The pontiff had amazed his doctors when he came out of his earlier coma at 3 a.m. and sat up in bed.

The Vatican said the Pope kissed a crucifix and blessed.

Skippers Fight Losing Battle

By MONTE ROBERTS

After five hours of drifting and tugging, skippers of 75 yachts entered in the Swiftsure and Juan de Fuca races were still whistling for decent winds.

Even the lightest-sailing little boats had made less than eight miles at 2:30 p.m. and were well short of Race Rocks.

Winds were southwest at six miles per hour.

A turn in the tide from flood to ebb aided slightly, but the bigger boats were having a frustrating battle even to pass Ogden Point in their reach for Race Rocks.

The appointed time was 9:30 a.m. today, the place Brothie Ledge on the Dallas Road waterfront.

The yachts were there—78 of them—the crews were there, more than 600 of them—the spectator boats, aircraft, and helicopters were there—dozens of them—and the waterfront watchers were there, in thousands.

But the appointment was missed by that most necessary component, the wind.

The result was the most dismal start for the Swiftsure ocean yacht racing classic ever witnessed in the 12 years I have been an observer.

INCOMING TIDE

Any sort of wind would have ensured a reasonable start, as there was a very slight incoming tide running—you could almost call it slack water.

But the wind sighed along listlessly, at less than 10 miles per hour from the southeast.

Then, just at the starting gun, the breeze fluked around to the west, catching most of the big boats away out of position to the east of the starting line.

At 10:30, several of them—including HMCS Oriole, Ta-toosh, Dorade—had to drop anchor to stay their backward progress in the Clover Point area.

SPLIT IN TWO

At 2:30 p.m. the fleet was split approximately in two, with the smaller boats—mainly BB and B class—in the area between Race Rocks and Albert Head—and the bigger yachts striving manfully to struggle past Ogden Point.

Freshening winds are expected this early evening, dying off again overnight.

This could be one of the slowest races in Swiftsure history—say 40 hours for the first boat home.

SOMEONE has to finish within 50 hours or the race will be declared over at the Swiftsure marker.

'DIFFERENCES MUST BE SUBMERGED'

WINDSOR, Ont. (UPI) — Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson today urged Canadians to submerge their regional economic and historic differences in a conscious effort to consolidate "a Canada above its parts."

Speaking at the spring convocation of Assumption University, where he received an honorary doctor of laws degree, Pearson said:

"Some regional problems seem to be absorbing more of our attention, so that differences in interest create, or at least appear to create, bigger gulfs between us."

He said Canada's fundamental needs are "not just the sum" of local, regional and sectional problems.

"There is a Canada above its parts," the prime minister said. "If we handle the big things well, the rest will fall into place and can be dealt with."

East Indians Beaten By Wild Mob

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP) — A wild mob swooped down on East Indians and beat them up early today as racial violence continued in this British colony on the northern coast of South America.

Negro leader Forbes Burnham condemned the crowd, saying:

"Even if violence were justifiable, and it can never be, there is no excuse for venting it on persons because of their racial identity. Everyone, regardless of his political affiliation or ethnic origin must feel safe."

British Guiana's 575,000 population almost is evenly split between Negroes and persons of East Indian descent.

Eight persons were in serious condition in hospital with injuries suffered in disturbances at a political funeral Friday. It was this fight which touched off the riot early today.

Premier Cheddi Jagan, an East Indian, and his Chicago-born white wife were roughed up by the crowd Friday at the burial of Senator Claude Christian, minister of home affairs.

British Guiana has been plagued by a long general strike protesting Jagan's austerity policies.

RCMP 'Fishing Expeditions' Blasted by New Democrats

By ARCH MACKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP drew another broadside from the New Democrats Friday about security operations.

The force has gone "far beyond its responsibilities" in investigating such groups as the Voice of Women and the Canadian Peace Research Institute, National Leader T. C. Douglas said in the Commons.

David Orlikow MP for Winnipeg North, said "fishing expeditions" by the Mounties to universities and elsewhere still are going on.

Colin Cameron, veteran socialist from Nanaimo-Cowichan Islands, cited two cases in detail to declare that "right now the situation is nothing short of a disgrace."

The episode in the Friday session of the Commons was part of a varied day. Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier, who answers to Parliament for the RCMP, was absent but State Secretary Pickersill said he will make a statement later.

Eldon Woodlams (PC — Bow River) said the RCMP is one of the world's finest police forces. It was necessary to maintain vigilance against Communist subversion, from whatever source.

The RCMP debate, arose as "grievances"—a process conducted when the government periodically asks for a fresh supply of spending money—were discussed. This money bill was still being debated Friday and will come up again Monday.

Mr. Cameron said he was approached the day after the April 8 election by a married couple. The wife had been visited by an RCMP intelligence

EXPERIMENT IN TREE GROWTH

Forest Fed by Aircraft

By HUMPHRY DAVY

LAKE COWICHAN—A short distance from this growing logging community an experiment is underway in spurring the growth of forest trees.

An aircraft this week has started to drop a fertilizer, "urea," over wooded areas near Cowichan Lake.

The fertilizer is in the form of tiny pellets containing organic nitrogen and other chemicals beneficial to plants.

The project calls for dropping 35 tons of fertilizer on a total of 450 acres of timber which range between 15 to 50 years of age.

The chemical fertilization will speed the growth of trees to loggable size more rapidly than the present average of 90 years.

William Sloan, president of Pacific Logging Co., which has launched the project, said the main object of the experiment is to find out if it is economical to fertilize trees from the air.

"We know the fertilizer will benefit the trees," he said. "But whether it is economical is another matter."

The project is being conducted in co-operation with Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Trail, which has supplied the chemical pellets free of charge.

The chemical pellets are loaded aboard a 1941 Stearman piloted by Barry Marsden of Langley, at the Paldi airstrip. He drops the pellets over a designated wooded area marked out with balloons.

It's a tricky business. He flies just over the tree tops and faces risks such as downdrafts and air pockets.

The fertilizer falls like hail, spreading evenly on the ground.

his three brothers and a sister keeping the death watch by his bed. Later he sipped coffee from a cup he held himself.

Through the night a parade of cardinals streamed to his room.

Before falling into a coma, the Pope talked at length with the prelates, saying he was ready. Once again he expressed hope that his ecumenical council would be completed.

The great crowds outside swelled and retreated during Pope John's dark night of survival, then filtered back silently at dawn today to continue the vigil in St. Peter's Square.

Through the night several hundred persons stood in knots about the slender obelisk rising from the centre of the square.

Most were seminarians, watching and praying.

With the first light of day, Romans and tourists joined them.

Convicted By Crowd

MOSCOW (AP)—A crowd of 2,000 Muscovites sentenced three youths to exile from the capital for speculative dealings with foreign visitors, Pravda reported Friday. The Communist party newspaper says the three young Russians were placed on trial before the crowd Thursday in a square in Moscow's Luzhniki Sports Park in what is known here as public court.

BOMB-BANNER FINED FOR MARKING STREET

NANAIMO (CP)—Robert Clerihue pleaded guilty Friday to a charge of defacing sidewalks by stencilling signs saying "No Nuclear Arms for Canada" and "Ban the A-Bomb" on Commercial Street shortly before the April 8 federal election.

"Banning the bomb may be something to be desired, and a great many people may feel the same way, but it doesn't merit defacing city streets," said Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts.

Clerihue said he didn't know there was a bylaw against marking the streets. He was fined $10 and $4 costs.

Alaska Peak Conquered By U.S. Team

TALKEETNA, Alaska (AP)—The mile-high, almost vertical east buttress of North America's highest mountain has been conquered by six mountain guides for the first time.

The men continued to the summit of Mount McKinley May 25. Their ascent was reported Friday by Mary Carey, Talkeetna correspondent for the Fairbanks News-Miner.

The climbers said none of them suffered frostbite while scaling the 20,300-foot peak but Warren Blesser, 24, Middlebury, Conn., suffered heat exhaustion while returning to base camp on Ruth Glacier. Blesser, Pet Lev of Boulder, Colo., and Fullerton, Calif., and Fred Wright of Burbank, Calif., remained at the camp waiting for clearing weather so a bush pilot could fly them out.
